EFFIE SHANNON. Rumor Has the Vivacious Actre

Married to Herbert Relcey.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—Some of Eme Shannon's friends have heard a rumor that she had been married a few days ago to Herbert Kelcey. Miss Shannon formerly played juvenile parts in the Lyceum Stock Company, but left it to take up more important roles. She is to open hore with Rose Coghlan. Kelcey has been attentive to Miss Shannon for more than a year past, and it has been common talk

There was gossip at the time of Miss Shannon's departure from the Lyceum company to the effect that Miss Shannon was to Case receiving so much of Kel-cey's attantion on resident of Kelcey's attention or resign from the company, but Frohman said that this was not so. Some friends of Miss Shannon put so much credence n the report of the marriage that there are prospects that Miss Shapnon's mail today will bring to Miss Shannon's mail today will bring to her various inquiries as to its truth. Miss Shannon was at one time the wife of Henry Guy Carleton, but she secured a divorce from him. There was no con-firmation last night of the report of the Charles Kirkham had been a resident of Jackson county since 1865. He was deputy county clerk for four years, County Clerk five years, and County Treasurer two years. About six years ago a position in the treasurer's office in Chicago was offered him. Melancholy was the cause of the suicide.

YOKOHAMA, Nov. 17 .- (Corresp YOKOHAMA, Nov. 17.—(Correspondence Associated Press wired from Victoria, B. C., Nov. 30.) No trouble is expected from the affair of the steamship Sydney. The United States government is disposed to regard the action of Japan as justifiable on the grounds of self-defense, and Great Britain coincides, although by England some form of explanation or apology may be deemed desirable. France has taken a less easy view of the situation, but is not disposed to make serious trouble. Her less easy view of the situation, but is not disposed to make serious trouble. Her opinion appears to be that the exigency was not sufficiently alarming to call for so graye a measure as the removal of passengers from a French mail steamship. Later developments undoubtedly indicate that the self-declared explosive experts were irresponsible speculators, if not im-postors, but the earliest information con-cerning them pointed to a very different

FRED GRANT INVOLVED. Reports were received here connecting Col. Fred Grant with the undertaking, and his name carried with it weight which would not have been accorded to unknown adventurers. It is well-known that Li Hung Chang holds the memory of Gen.

Hung Chang holds the memory of Gen.
Grant in reverence, and he would presumably have been disposed to place unusual resources at the disposal of a party representing his son. The sums alleged to have been retually advanced to his alleged agents correspond exactly with those set forth by the syrvelers of the Gaelle and the Sydney. Taking these and other correlative facts into consideration, the Japaness government believed itself under the necessity of guarding against the threatened dasger.

The French diplomatic and consular officers were powerless to intervene, had

It is not anticipated that the proceeding will be so harmonious as those of the extraordinary session held in Hiroshima The sole purpose of that gathering was to authorize war expenditures and all demes-tic dissensions were allowed to rest by common consent. The loyal and patriotic-purposes of the members having been definitely avowed, the Opposition now co itself free to resume its customary violen attitude toward the government. Only under one extreme influence like that pro-duced by the war could parliamentary quarrels to be temporarily laid aside. JAPANESE SUBJECTS ON UNITED STATES CRUISERS.

As previously reported, the Minister of Foreign Affairs recently sent a communi-cation to the Governor of the port of Kan-agawa, in which it was stated that Japanese subjects serving on board United States ships in Japanese ports must be regarded by the government as coming un-der the jurisdiction of the imperial courts As this opinion is contrary to the position maintained by the United States, the question was brought up for diplomatic discus-sion. It now uppears that the foreign minister has no intention to deliver an ex cathedra judgment on the subject. The native newspaper which printed his letter to the local Governor has been fined 20 yen for punishing a private official docu-ment without permission. In the course of the trial the prosecuting attorney remarked that the administrative officials were not concerned with the questions of jurisdic-tion, and that the correspondence under tion, and that the correspondence under consideration conveyed only the individual views of the writers and the legal point at issue was in no way affected by the opinions expressed. The incident will therefore pass without further debate.

A MESSAGE FROM THE EMPEROR. The Emperor has sent from Hiroshima the following message to the army under Gen. Yamagata: "I am impressed by the loyalty and bravery with which you have overcome countless obstacles, and in your onward march have driven the enemy beyond the boundary of Korea, occupying the onward march have driven the enemy beyond the boundary of Korea, occupying his territory and making yourselves masters of this important position. Now that the severities of winters are approaching, take heed to your health and bear yourself so that tuture successes shall follow."

In connection with this address, it may be mentioned that the surgeon-general reports that the troops actively engaged in Manchuria are in a better average condition than at any previous time in the last tion than at any previous time in the last four years. Contrary to the usual experience, illness is less common among the Japanese troops in the field than while the same men were in garrison service.

OREIGN MINISTERS TO QUIT PEKING One of the latest dispatches from Tienunces that the foreign minister are making preparations for united de-parture from Peking. Whether this is in-tended as a mark of dissatisfaction with he government, or want of confidence in its power to protect the diplomatic corps is not indicated. That Great Britain has assumed an extremely threatening atti-tude toward China is asserted with great emphasis and directness by the corre-spondents in Peking and Tien-Tsin. The apparent neglect of the former power to demand reparation for the Chung-King affair has never ceased to be a matter of surprise, but if reports now current are well-grounded, it is evident that the wrath of the English government is not slumbering for a moment.

It was on August 2 that a body of fifty or more Chinese soldiers boarded the Brit-ish mail-steamer Chung-King, while that ressel was lying on her wharf near Tien-Tsin, and committed a series of outrages upon several passengers upon their way to Shanghai. These passengers were mostly Japanese officials of considerable rank. Their business was to exact atonement for the insuit to their flag and atonement for the insult to their flag and until within the past week it has not been publicly known that any steps toward seeking ridress had been taken. Now, however, reports of formidable prepara-tions for the enforcement of satisfaction are abroad. It is said that Admiral Fre mantle has summoned the entire British fleet to meet at Shanghai, to await the arrival of a strong military force from India, the landing of which at Chu-San is India, the landing of which at Chu-San is to be effected without delay. Affairs in Korea appear to be in a very bad shape, despite official Japanese state-ments. The interference of Japan to put everything to rights appears to have had a contrary effect by putting everything wrong. Anarchy stalks at large through out the southern part of the kingdom. It is said that the armies of malcontents range from 20,000 to 50,000 strong. The entire population may be said to be hostile to the occupation by the Japanese, and though the wretched King, who is as plastic clay in the hands of the potter, to be molded at will, has been directed issue an edict that every one is to be beheaded who sympathizes with the Tong-Haks, or who molests the Japanese, but small heed is likely to be paid to such a sweeping order, for if it were possible to carry it out. Korea would lose a very heavy percentage of the male population. However, the Japanese friends of the country will more or less try their hands at carrying into effect what most persons simply regard to be their own order issued by the King.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 30.—James E. Jackson of Birmingham, Ala., an extensive owner of coal mines in Walker county, and who is stopping in this city for a few days, in an interview with a representative of the Associated Press, has this to say in regard to the condition of affairs in his State growing out of the gubernatorial contests between Kolb and Oates:

State growing out of the gubernatorial contests between Kolb and Oates:

"The situation in Alabama growing out of Kolo's threat is a very serious one, and will materially affect all business interests of the State. Insurance companies are already very much alarmed, and are talking about canceling all outstanding policies in view of the prospect of a revolution that may be inaugurated on December i, the effect and duration of which no one can foresee. It has leaked out from most reliable authority that, at generat meeting recently held by teading-Populists in the State, it was determined to advise all who supported Kolb in the last election to resuse to pay taxes to the Oates government. Kolo's followers, who are mostly farmers, will hall with delight any excuse to refrain from paying taxes, as the low price of cotton has almost bank-rupted them. Their refusal to pay taxes will decrease the receipts of the State treasury over $1,000,000. Grave fears are entertained all over the State, but capecially is this feeling intense in the mining districts of Birmingham, and all along the line of the Louisville and Nashville Rail.

Private telegrams have been made pubfic that a large number of Popullats from Texas will be in Montgomery December 1 to assist Kolb's followers. It is expected that fully 10,000 people will be in Montgomery to back Kolb. It is reliably reported that Kolb will set up a separate government, and in case that he finds that he cannot hold Montgomery, will retire to Calero, sixty-six miles north of Montgomery, where he will be backed by the surrounding counties and sustained by a standing army, and his government supported by the counties friendly to him paying taxes to his government."

A prominent leader of the Populists, Hon. Frank Baltzell, editor of the Alliance-Herald, who is in a position to speak for Kolb, said today that he did not expect any overt acts or revolutionary course by the Populist followers, for the reason that the party has spoken against it, and everything is unfavorable for such a movement. Many regard the usurpation of Oates as a wrong, which will justify any resistance to prevent its consummation, but they do not intend to resort to any sort of violence. Nearly every prominent man in the movement is opposed any violence and all of those in authority are opposed to it.

"Where is Seely?" Pershall was asked.

Pershall said that Seely had a good case on which to fight when he surrendered.

"You may look for some very interesting developments," he said. "There is a good deal of this bank-robbery story that has not yet been told, but it will all come out. The bank has not lost nearly as much money as has been reported as stolen from it. Seely and Baker were both tools of other persons, but who they are I cannot tell at this time. Seely's counsel will probably be in a position to say something to the public of a very definite nature."

There was another development in the Shoe, and Leather Bank defalcation yesterday of scarcely less interest than Lawyer Pershall's announcement that Sely was preparing to surrender and that his ball had been practically arranged. A wellball had been practically arranged. A well-known poolroom backer, who was unwiling that his name be used, said that Seely, for several years, had been a partner of Peter Lacey and Andrew Boyd in the poolroom at No. 36 Park Row. This place has been closed for a year and since then Andy Boyd has been backing a "hand-book" on the races in partnership, it is alleged, with Seely.

The examination of the second box of the late Frederick Baker in the Park National Bank has been in progress all morning. Lawyer Angel, counsel for Seely, the defaulting book-keeper, persists in his refusal to talk about his client's whereabouts.

Ten indictments were handed in to the Court of General Sessions today by the grand jury against Samuel Seely, allog-ing forgery and grand larceny. All were found on the evidence of Cashier Van Vilet. Bench warrants were issued. The directors of the Shoe and Leather Bank met at noon and passed resolutions offer-ing a reward of $5000 for the arrest and conviction of Seely.

It is believed now that young Max Rosenfelt, who was slightly wounded in the hip, was the oblect of the attack Loughborough is still in jail. All the young men are of wealthy and influential families.

Loughborough was today charged with assault to murder on two counts. He was released on bonds of $3000 for the Whitehouse shooting and $2000 for the Rosenfeld case. From the conflicting stories told of the affair it is hard to fix the blame. Loughborough says that he fired in self-defense, as he was being badly beaten, and his appearance certainly shows that he was roughly handled. As near as can be learned Loughborough was shaking dice at the bar when one of the dice rolled to the floor. He stooped to pick it up when Rosenfeld pushed it out of the way with his cane. Loughborough, who has a reputation for ill-temper and quarrelsomeness, struck Rosenfeld in the face, and the blow was returned with interest. During the scuffle that ensued, it is surmised that others in the crowd took a whack at Loughborough, and it was then that he did the shooting. Both the wounded men will recover.

Associated Press Leased-wire Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—The Evening Post says that the statement of H. O. Havemeyer, president of the American Sugar Refining Company, that the refineries must be shut down for a while owing to the depression in the trade, due to legislation, was discussed today in business and labor circles. The modified announcement made by Havemeyer today that only half the force would be laid off was regarded as an indication of a less fixed purpose than was indicated in the declaration of the company's intention on Wednesday night.

lay night.

At the refineries in Brooklyn hundred

At the refineries in Brooklyn hundreds of workingmen and women, members of their families, were gathered this morning. From their statements it appeared that about 3000 of the 4000 usually busy there were idle today. They did not know how long this would last. When they were discharged on Wednesday night they understood that they would resume again on Sunday. Others said that so far as they knew, the refineries were not overstocked with sugar, as there was less than 40,000 barrels on hand, not more than four days. Supply for the market.

The Mollenhauer refinery, which is not in the trust, was running at its full capacity today. Extra hands were put on this morning. In Wall street the disposition was general to connect the action of the Sugar Trust managers with the coming session of Congress. The directors have received nothing officially since the vote in the Senate, and have refused to talk even when the rather striking trade developments of the past two months have been in progress. It has, however, been generally believed that the next dividend on the sugar company's common stock, which is payable, in January, and will be on the sugar company's common stock, which is payable in January, and will be declared in the middle of next month, will be reduced from the quarterly 3 per

HAWAIIAN SUGAR..

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 30.—After January 1 the Western Sugar Refinery will commence shipping raw sugar from Honolulu to New York direct by ships sailing around the Horn. The refinery officials say that the change in the shipment route is due to an oversupply for sugar on the Pacific Coast. It is said, however, that the real reason is that an unusually large quantity is to be shipped east from the Hawaiian Islands next year, and that as the Southern Pacific would not make a satisfactory rate on overland shipments the refinery people will fight the railroad people by sea. Hitherto all the Hawaiian sugar has been brought to San Francisco for distribution. A number of 'ocal shipping firms will suffer by the diversion of freight. HAWAIIAN SUGAR.

HOW ADOLPH SPRECKELS VIEWS IT.
SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 30.—In reference to the Associated Press interview with H.
O. Havemeyer, president of the American Sugar Refining Company, Adolph Spreckels, director and secretary of the California Sugar Refining Company.

Sugar Refining Company, Adolph Spreckels, director and secretary of the California Sugar Refinery, said:

"I have read that Havemeyer interview, and I understand the exact condition of sugar refining in the Eastern States. Havemeyer and his people control the sugar trade of the country east of the Missouri Riyer, and the California refinery controls pretty much all west of the river. I think that Havemeyer is right when he says that closing his refineries will throw 50,000 people out of work.

"The reason they are to close is this: They cannot compete with foreign sugars. The administration has effectually shut out the sugar-refining business in this country. German granulated sugar is laid down in New York for $3.56 per 100 pounds, and raw, or crude sugar, costs laid down there $3.50 per 100 pounds. That leaves a margin of six-one hundredths of 1 cent per pound on which to pay refinery charges and make a profit. The thing is simply absurd. In the East they pay refinery hands $1.75 per day. In Germany the wages are but $1.12. The trade cannot stand the difference. The German sugar is beet-sugar that has been refined abroad. This market is now bringing in a great deal of Chinese sugar that is refined by two English firms in Hongkong. They use raw sugar from Batavia and the Phillippine Islands. Those refineries employ coole labor at 10 cents a day. There is only one remedy, and that is protection." fineries employ cooks labor at 10 cents day. There is only one remedy, and the

Those who were near enough crawled behind the bar, under which the bartender had crawled at the first fire. Those who could not reach the bar dropped flat on the floor, but still, the robbers kept on firing. Three men were hit, but none were seriously wounded.

The sound of the shots and the yelling of the wounded men brought a great crowd to the saloon, but nobody was daring enough to enter. The two robbers were apparently as much frightened as any one for they retreated to a side door and sot into the street within two minutes of their entry. They started down the street on a run. Several policemen joined n the chase that followed, and after a run of nearly a mile one of the men was caught.

When captured the man was atmost unconscious from the clubbing he had received. He said that he had arrived from California three days ago and in that time he had nothing to eat. Telegrams to a Detective Brought-in Evidence — Defendant's Nurse Testifies—An Offer from

Associated Press Lessed-wire Service.

FARGO (N. D.,) Nov. 30.—Some telegrams sent by Hirschfield to Detective Devereaux were sprung this morning. Hirschfield, in his testimony, denied that he ever sent telegrams regarding Anderson and other witnesses. He said that Devereaux collected evidence, and that he thinself did not know who the witnesses were or the character of their evidence until they appeared on the stand.

Manager Haywood, of the Western Union, was ordered to produce in court the telegrams. The first read was regarding Balley, the Palmer House employee. Devereaux telegraphed that Balley would not testify for less than $500. Hirschfield answered that the testimony was not valuable enough to give $50. Another from Devereaux, supposed to refer to Anderson, said: "Refuses to come for less than $500 and expenses." Hirschfield answered: "Hold to agreement for $400 and expenses." Devereaux asswered: "Sent package by today's train." There were others of similar character.

An attempt was made to have all telegrams to and from Helena produced. This mas bitterly fought by the plaintiff, and will be decided this afternoon. Mrs. Hirschfield was called. So the estand and submitted to a rigid cross-examination.

In the afternoon Mrs. Duval, Mrs. Hirschfield was called. She testified to hearing the conversation between Mrs. Connors and the defendant. Mrs. Connors had testified that Mrs. Hirschfield was laid that all she wanted was his money. She said on the occasion in question Mrs. Connors repeatedly urged Mrs. Hirschfield to give up her husband, as Mrs. L. H. Hirschfield would never let him live with her. Mrs. Dell Hirschfield indignantly refused and Mrs. Connors said she was very foolish.

Mrs. Duval also testified that Harry Freeman came to her and asked her what salary Mrs. Hirschfield and would see that she got three or four times her monthly salary. When asked who would give her this, Freeman told her to go with him to Mrs. L. H. Jirschfield and that they would assure her that the amount would be forthroug

GUTHRIE (Okla.,) Nov. ,30.—Great GUTHRIE (Okla...) Nov. 30.—Great excitement exists in the little town of Deep Fork, I. T. Six citizens of that place gave the Indian Territory deputies the clew that led to the arrest of "Skeeter," who has just been tried and sentenced at Fort Smith. Wednesday morning rude placards, surmounted by skull and crossbones, were nailed to the respective homes of the six informers. The placard, written in a cramped, scrawly hand, was signed "By Order of Bill Cook," and read as follows:

"By Order of Bill Cook," and read as fol-lows:

"We have spotted you. You wormed our confidence and 'leaked,' when you wanted, us to do some devilment, and threw off suspicion. 'Skeeter' was yer friend. We intend to kill you before the deputy mar-shals get up; take warning. (Signed)

"BY ORDER OF BILL COOK."

Many regard the notice as the work of practical jokers, but nevertheless four of the six citizens have left the place.

FIRE IN HIROSHIMA BARRACKS.

A fire on November 12 in Hiroshima Barracks resulted in a large loss of life. Apparently the soldiers occupying the upper stories were unfortunately only cognizant when too late of their perilous position and, as the fames later on enveloped the whole building, they were unable to escape their terrible misfortune. Thirty-eight non-commissioned officers and soldiers, who were on the second and third stories when the confiagration commenced, were burned to death; thirty-four were injured, ten of them severely.

Two men, perpetrators of atrocious murders, were arrosted by the Kumagai police on November 7. Kujirai Chiyokichi, a farmer at Tamaimura, Saitama prefecture, made love to the wife of his employer, which love was rejected by her, and the affair coming to the master's knowledge, he severely reprimanded his employee. The horribie idea of murder came into the latter's mind. Thisking help necessary to perform his atrocious act, he prevailed upon Mada Katsutaro, employed in a browery in the same village, to help him; the employee of the farmer saying that 50 yen, which the farmer was about to receive, could be secured.

On the night of November 1, the employee and accomplice secreted themselves in the house. At midnight the two ross up. First the farmer was cut down with a sword belonging to him, while the accomplice carried a lamp. Next the wife was killed; then the daughter, a girl of 11 years, who cried for mercy, was strangled; then the master's old father was put to an end; then the maid servant was strangled; then the master's old father was put to an end; then the maid servant was strangled; then the master's old father has promplice arried to the kitchen and killed.

STOCKTON, Nov. 30.—Miss Jennie Lyons of Linden, aged 34 years, committed suicide this morning, after two other ineffectual attempts at self-destruction. She climbed upon a windmill and precipitated herself head first into a tank of water. She was found dead shortly afterward. Last Sunday she tried to end her life by taking carbolic acid and arsenic, but failed to take a sufficient quantity of the poison to cause death. Yesterday she attempted to hang herself in a hayloft, but was discovered and prevented.

She was living on the ranch of her uncle, T. Cole. Some months ago she sustained an injury of the head, which resulted in her insanity. She was thought to be harmless, however, and she was not committed to the asylum. During the last few days her dementia assumed a suicidal turn.

monly circulated is that it is a simple case of desertion.

The fact that the two husbands, who had passed that stage of married life known as the honeymoon and whose brief experience in matrimony had to all appearances been most happy, would, without a word of warning or a slight indication that such an act was contemplated, drop suddenly and completely out of sight, is an occurrence not only very unusual, but entirely beyond explanation. In their five months of wedded bliss there had never been the slightest reproach to a quarrel or disagreement in either home; at least that is the condition of affairs as reported by the two deserted wives and those of the neighbors who were most in a position to know.

Some of these neighbors had been very intimately acquainted with the Moultons and their wives, and would surely have heard of it had there been any unpleasont friction within the family circles. They all agree that, so far as their observations went, there never had been anything to mar the peace and happiness of the two brothers' homes.

Rules for Cultivation of Deciduous Orchards.

(California Cultivator:) Bulletin No. 72. issued by the Cornell University Ex periment Station, Ithaca, N. Y., is devoted to "The Cultivation of Orchards," and we give below an abridgement of it. The rules will apply to California or-chards, although in one or two instances they differ from the methods usually

If orchards are to be made profitable they must receive as good care as other crops.

Good drainage, natural or artificial, is essential to success. Trees are impatient of wet feet.

Well drained lands are drier in wet spells and moister in dry spells than other lands. They can be worked earlier spells and mouster in thy spells than other lands. They can be worked earlier in spring.

Good tillage increases the available food supply of the soil, in order to fortify themselves against drouth. This is done by draining the soil and by plowing the orchard rather deep.

This deep plowing should begin the very year the trees are set and it should be continued every spring until the habit of the trees is established.

Moisture is retained in the upper soil by very frequent but shallow tillage, by means di which the surface of the land becomes a mulch for the surface below.

Tillage should be begun just as soon as the ground is dry enough in spring.

This tillage should be repeated as often as once in ten days throughout the growing season.

as once in ten days throughout the growing season.

Tillage should not exist for the purpose of killing weeds. Weeds have taught the most important lesson in agriculture, to be sure, but the schoolmaster should now be able to retire.

Late cultivation may be injurious by inducing a late growth. At all events it can be of small utility when the tree begins to mature and rains become frequent. This season of respite gives the grower the opportunity of raising a green manure, and of adding fertility to his are allowed to stand above the tree roots. Cultivators is the best crop to raise in orchards.

Sod is sometimes allowable in apple and standard pear orchards, but never in other plantations; but even then it should be pastured closely with sheep or hogs. If the stock is fed at the same time, the land will fare better.

Watch a sod orchard. It will begin to fall before you know it.

Probably nine-tenths of the apple orchards in New York State are in sod, and many of them are meadows. Of course they are failing.

The remedy for these apple failures is to cut down many of the orchards. For the remainder, the treatment is cultivation, fertillising, spraying—the trinity of orthodox apple-growing.

In general, level culture is best. The modern cultivators and harrows make such cultivation easy:

Trees, especially apples, are often trained too high, because of the difficulty of working close to them Modern tools will bring the heads within reach.

Harrosses with no projecting hames nor metal turrets should be used in bearing orchards. Those requiring no whiffletrees are also useful.

The Female Tramp.

(Louisville Commercial:) "A new feature of trampdom," said Capt. Bossung yesterday, "is the female tramp. There have been a few wanderers of this type during the past year or two, but they were generally hardly worth counting. Women, as a general thing, do not take to this kind of life, but this winter there will be plenty of them if it keeps up as it has begun. I have at least one woman a day apply here for shelter. They are of the genuine tramp order, too, and can tell tales of suffering that would make your blood run cold. They are, for the most part, made up, but then one cannot help but admire the ingenuity of the tellers. They come from small towns and are, as a general thing, middle-aged women, but now and then there is a young one. I have yet to see the one that is good-looking. All claim to have been deserted by heartless husbands, and say they are going to some town near by, where they have relatives that are willing to support them until they can find work. In nine cases out of ten none of them know anything about the places where they say they are going, and when questioned they do not even know the names of the streets. I am not finding fault, though, for I believe in women's rights, and that they can be tramps if they want to just the same as the men. It just goes to show what a woman can accomplish if she once makes up her mind." The Female Tramp.

The Light Brahma.

(American Farmer:) The Light Brah-mas are without doubt the leaders of the Asiatic class and they deserve the position they hold, for through the efforts of some of the most intelligent and skillful breed ers of America, they have been brought to great perfection, both in standard points and in beauty of plumage. The Asiatic class is as a rule, much given to stiting the broading instinct being strong sitting, the brooding instinct being strong in them, the Light Brahmas have been selected for years with a view to breeding this instinct out if possible, and to such purpose that there are some strains of this variety that rarely sit. The writer had some Light Brahma hens that did not offer to sit at all until they were the verse old, and then they were not hard to break of the deafer. The eggs of the Light Brahma are of a rich reddish yellow and are produced in greater plenty than those of any other member of the Asiatic class, with the possible exception of the Langshans. The chicks are hardy and grow amazingly when well cared for, and there is no prettier sight than a flock of these birds bred to the perfection that it is not hard to attain to of late years. The one who breeds Light Brahmas has no need to fear that he will lack for a buyer for them at any time that he wants to dispose of them. in them, the Light Brahmas have been

AMUSEMENTS TONIGHT.

THE MAYORALTY AND THE WA

Perhaps the most important que tion that will come up in the next few years affecting the city of Los les is the water question. Within a few years the lease of the City Water Company will expire and we shall then be called upon to decide what steps should be taken to enable the city to own its own system. A great majority of the citizens are strongly in favor of the city owning water system, especially as it already owns the source of supply-or, at least, thinks it does, although there find ourselves in should the water no telling what position we may company succeed in the schemes which it now has under way. It is absurd to suppose that the water company will give up its valnable franchise without making a desperate struggle to hold on to it in several times what it is worth. For some time past it has been quietly laying its plans to place the city more or less at its mercy when the term of its franchise expires. It already ply, drawn from a gravel bed along side the Los Angeles River, which the ply from that of the river, but upon which subject the city authorities hold a different opinion. It is now perfect ing a new distributing pipe line from this supply, running outside the city to the western and southern part of town. The deal whch was or t a short time ago for the selling of this franchise, which had such very short time to run, to Eastern people at a very high price, was be lieved by many to have been arranged for the purpose of giving a fictitious the property when the time comes for the city to pay for the im provements. Last, but not least, we have the Spilman affair, concerning which much has been said in the press during the past couple of weeks The city has gone to the unnecessary trouble of stipulating with Mr. Spil man in regard to the ownership of certain land near the river, from which he expects to get a water sup ply. It is believed by many that Mr. man, who is not a man of means. is the City Water Company in dis guise. In that case, with the Crystal Springs on one side of the river and the Spilman drainage basin on the

be about all. We mention these facts for the pur pose of showing how urgently neces sary it is to elect a Mayor for the next two years who is right on this water question. It is reported that the com pany will endeavor to obtain an extension of its franchise for twenty five years. By that time there doubt would not be any water left in the river, or enough money in the county to buy the improvements at the value placed upon them by the company, so that it would be just as well to abandon the idea of municipal ownership altogether. But this is not what the people want. They want the city to acquire the water system on reasonable terms, so that water may be supplied to householders at thus increasing the desirability of Los Angeles as a place of residence, and at the same time les sening the burden of expense to the small householder who finds the water rate at present quite an item in onthly accounts.

We know very well how Mr. Hazard stands on this question. His record has been an open one, and very plain on the subject. He has all along stood up for the rights of the people the company. Only recently he called stipulation, and the hubbub which his communication has caused in certain quarters tends to confirm the belief that there is more behind that stipu lation, than appears on the surface On the other hand, what do the cith zens know of Mr. Rader's opinions on subject that would justify them in feeling confident that he would dithe right thing for the people whe afident that he would do the water question comes up? His affiliations have been entirely with that class of people who derive their incomes from such sources as stocks and bonds, and when any question is sufficient to justify the people in placing him in so important an office? RADER'S "DEFENSE."

Forced to make some show of defending Mr. Rader's Broadway rec ord, the unesteemed Oxpress come out, after thirty-six hours' silence. with a labored statement, the gist of which is that Mr. Rader did not seek appointment on the Broadway commission, that the transfers of his prop erty were bona fide, and that at the time he served on the commission there was nothing in the law prohibiting a man's sitting in judgment on case involving his own property in-

This is evidently the strongest de fense that Mr. Rader and his organ can make in the premises. Unfortu nately for Mr. Rader, it is wholly in-adequate to clear him from the proven charge of pusillanimity, if not of a technical violation of law.

As to the plea that Rader did not seek the appointment, it is ridiculously false, as can be easily proved by a number of reputable witnesse who were cognizant of his persistent efforts to secure a place upon the con

Of course it cannot positively be shown that the transfer of the Broadway property to his partner and the subsequent re-transfer of the same property to Mr. Rader, were not bona fide transactions. But the circum stances of the case furnish almost conclusive evidence that these transfers were a mere makeshift by which he hoped to avoid the ap pearance of adjudicating a case in which he was financially interested.

It is of little consequence, as affect ing the moral status of the case whether the law at that time expressly prohibited a property-owner's sitting in judgment on a matter involving his own financial interests The principle was the same before the law was amended as it was after ward. In fact, it is a well-established principle of law that a man shall not act in such a capacity where his own interests are directly in issue. Had Mr. Rader been possessed of a fine sense of honor, he would have declined to serve upon the commission. even if pressed to do so, instead of importunately seeking the appoint ment, as he did. law was evidently amended, in 1893, for the express purpose of presuch as Frank Rader had been guilty of. His despicable course in this matter had not improbably served to ac centuate the necessity for more strin gent and specific legislation to pre vent unscrupulous and self-seeking men from becoming the legal arbiter of questions involving their own prop erty interests. At all events, the at empt to prove that Mr. Rader was not guilty of a technical violation of the law is begging the question; for he was guilty, in a moral sense, of an offense against decency and good conscience in seeking a place on the commission, and in serving thereon after he had obtained the appointment.

Mr. Rader's "defense," therefore, does not defend. On the contrary, it exhibits him in a more pusillanimous light, even, than before. His record in this affair, taken in conjunction with his equally shady record in other matters, which have heretofore re ceived attention in these columns should impel him to withdraw from the contest, in order to save himself and the Republican party from the humifiation of ignominious defeat.

MR. RYAN'S ATTITUDE.

It is urged in Mr. Ryan's behalf, by the organ which is supporting his can didacy, that "he has appealed to n prejudice, and presents himself for the suffrages of his fellow-citizens on his merita" This statement may be true as to Mr. Ryan, personally. The Times, at least, has never charged that gentleman with making a per-sonal appeal for votes on the strength of his being a Catholic. But the fact remains that he relies upon Catholic votes to elect him to the mayoralty and he well knows that without tha support he cannot be elected.

Under normal conditions, it is quite their support between the candidates on the lines of personal preference and political affiliation, without ref erence to the religious views of any of them. But the knowledge that the A Catholic vote as solidly on the side of Mr. Ryan. While the latter may not be responsible for this condition of things, the condition exists, nevertheless, and the situation must be taken as we find it, not as we would have it It is perfectly clear, therefore, that Mr. Ryan and Mr. Rader stand be fore the people as the Catholc and the anti-Catholic candidate respectively. It is equally clear that the unprejudiced citizen, who desires only th highest good of the city and the selec tion of the best man for Mayor, would identify himself with this fanatical sectarian contest, should he cast his vote for either Ryan or Rader. Mcreover, Henry T. Hazard is by long odds the ablest and best man before the people for the office. The duty of all good citizens to vote for Mr. Hazard therefore, plain and undeniable.

POISON'S LATEST IDEA.

He is engaged in a new invention which, if a success, bids fair to make all his other wonders fade into com parative insignificance. The proposi tion alone is enough to take an ordinary man's breath away, let alone fts practical demonstration. It is to 'render communication between opposit ends of the earth possible without tele graph, telephone or any of the many or even a wire. Here is the simple proposition. Your friend in Europe arries a small machine of this ne invention, in size and shape resembling an ordinary watch. You carry similar one in America. When you vish to communicate with your friend in Europe you take out the watch, the needle of which is in electric sym oathy with his machine. The needle scillates like that of a compass, and when you find the direction in which it points you turn in that direction and think hard. That is all. The claim is that concentrated thought will produce an electric current and that the mechanism of the new inven tion is so delicate that it will respond to this current.

Elsewhere in this issue are published extracts from editorial comments nade by The Times and the Herald, in 1889, on the Ballona outfall sewer job and on Mayor Hazard's veto of the iniquitous Rose contract, by which the scheme was frustrated, and many thousands of dollars saved to the taxpayers of this city. This affair is not history of so ancient a date that it has passed out of the minds of our ctizens; yet the republication of the essential facts at this time will serve to recall some of the details which may have been in part forgotten, and to emphasize the courage and sagacity displayed by Mayor Hazard in pro-tecting the city from its would be despoilers. It is a chapter of local history which is opportune to recall at the present time. Mr. Hazard will be as prompt and efficient in 1895-96 as in 1889, in protecting the people's interests, should he be elected Mayor ext Monday.

What's in a name? The New England Tariff-reform League has thrown off its mask and will hereafter e known as the "New England Freetrade League." This is as it should be. Free trade has nothing to gain in the long run by masquerading under the euphemism of "tariff reform." Mr. Hazard is well posted and sound on the water question. Neither Mr. Rader nor Mr. Ryan has any record on that question. It is no exaggeration to say that this issue is the mos important matter before the people of Los Angeles at the present time. The necessity of having in the Mayor's chair a man who thoroughly understands this question, and stands ready to protect the city's interests in any and every emergency, is too apparent to require especial emphasis.

Seven miners of the Elk county (Pa.,) district, who were convicted of burning coal tipples and placing bombs under buildings during the last summer, have been sentenced by Judge Mayer of Pittsburgh to terms in the penitentiary ranging from three to seven years. Judge Mayer of Pittsburgh is evidently made of the same sort of stuff as Judge Ross of Los Angeles. He believes in crushing out anarchy without fear or favor.

Gov. Waite of Colorado is still be wailing his defeat in the late election, and continues to declare that "the women did it." AT THE PLAYHOUSES.

LOS ANGELES THEATER-The stage of this city has never had set out upon it a more beautiful and finished production of the old play-poem "Ingomar" than was presented at the Los Angeles Theater last night by Robert Downing and his charming Eugenie Blair. Mr. Downing's Ingo par is an innovation. He is not the black-earded, low-browed barbarian other play-rs have been wont to make him, instead is a great, sturdy, magnificent blonde erness, not by straining at effect, but ure or a shrug of the shoulders, ch has telling significance. It is an telligence, and so set forth that there are new beauties in the graceful and poetic lines, and in the telling situations.

Of Miss Blair one may say that she is quite the idea! Parthenia, garbed in Grecian dress, crowned with a wealth of golden hair, soft of speech, gentle, tender, clinging, maidenly, sweet and fair to look upon it is little wonder that she early wins the rough mountaineer from his rough ways and sets him picking posies in the glade that she may weave them into garlands. One of the daintiest bits of playing she does is in the first act when, released from the arms of her father after their first meeting in the barbarlan's camp.

At the matine today an American play by an American, entitled "Bichard, the Lion Hearted" will be given. Tonight the brief but brilliant engagement will close with a second presentation of "The Glad-you?"

"Well, I called to see your Chief of Police on a very important matter. Where is he?"

"He has just gone out, down toward Spring street. He may be back in ten minutes and may be not for an hour.
Won't you step in and wait?"
"No. I haven't time to wait; but it is an important matter."
"If you will tell it to me, lady," put in the guileless Cox, "I may be able to help you out."

"Well," said the lady, "It is an impor tant personal business matter between him and me, and I should like to see him personally, but it's this way. I'm not in the habit of swearing myself, being a church member, so I want the Chief to come out to my house and swear at the neighbors, which keep the cow that bawls all night."

And having told her story, thus emphatically the nice old lady went off down the street. The story was the joke of the station yesterday and Chief Class is wondering what they will want him to do next.

years ago, or when he is quoting from public documents in an effort to prove himself an angel and the rest of the popupublic documents in an effort to prove himself an angel and the rest of the population knaves, and he seems to have been as unfortunate as usual in his references to this Ballona sewer question. There were three votes taken in this city on the sewer issue. In two of them the Ballona project figured. Mr. Hazard claims to have saved the million dollars in the spring of 1890 by retiring the issuance of sewer bonds at the election held at that time. What are the facts? We give them as shown by the official records which even Mr. Hazard cannot deny:

"On file in the City Clerk's office can be seen ordinances Nos, 536, 537 and 538, providing respectively for the issuance of $374,000 bonds for an interior system, $527,900 for an interior storm drain system and $686,775 for an outfall system. Bach of these ordinances was approved January 21, 1890, by 'Henry T. Hazard, Mayor.' On February 13, 1890, he approved ordinances Nos, 561, 562 and 563, providing for elections to be held March 13, 14 and 15, 1890, to vote on the above propositions.

"Mr. Haryard, uptil the present cam-viding for elections to be held March 13, 14 and 15, 1890, to vote on the above propositions.

"Mr. Harrard, until the present campaign, has never 'vetoed' any of these measures, either officially or as a private ritizen. It is certainly rather late in November, 1994, to protest against ordinances which he indorsed as Mayor in 1890, and which were decided by the people themselves four years ago. The fact is that Mr. Hazard relies on the fact that Los Angeles has had a large increase in populotion since he was Mayor, to deceive many of the new yotels, as to his past record. When hely was always the whing he was most this united for was a continual effort, to injure the reputation of his colleagues in the city government. He was perpetually trying to build up a record for himself by manufacturing stories about the members of the Council and other public officials, and then rushing on the streets and proclaiming his own virtue. He is trying the same tactics now, but his efforts give evidence of very poor success."

This is richness, indeed, and is news to the citisens of Los Angeles, who remember the fallant work of Mr. Hazard to defeat the Bellona outlant sewer. In contrast to the silly and medicious misstatements of the organette, the following from the These First BOMBSHELL.

"The bombahell's deally work! The

THE FIRST BOMBSHELL,

"The bombshell's deadly work! The bombshell fired into the Council by Mayor Harard on Monday has utterly demoralized the boodlers. They flutter around like wounded birds. While affecting to belittle the importance of the disclosure, their nervousness betrays them, and shows that they have been struck in a vulnerable part. Their discomfiture is, in fact, complete, and is recognized by themselves, although they make a show of answering the Mayor's damaging charges, but these 'answers' are so silly and childish as to excite mingled pity and contempt. They are, in fact, scarcely worth referring to, except to show how complete is the rout of the boodlers, horse, foot and dragoons.

"The organs which represent the Ballona scheme do not pretend to deny the onerous nature of the conditions contained in the Rose contract—as, indeed, they cannot—but they claim, first, that is not a contract, but an 'option' secondly, that Rose can be compelled to grant a right-of-way by condemnation, and, thirdly, that there are other routes which can be taken.

"Now, what twaddle all this is. The THE FIRST BOMBSHELL.

by condemnation, and, thirdly, that there are other routes which can be taken. "Now, what twaddle all this is. The more the boodlers struggle the deeper they get into the mire. Say it is an option. It is an option for a contract which the Council intended to bind the city by, is it not! And why did the Council keep it from the Mayor and adopt the extraordinary course of having it signed by the City Clerk., if it was all honorable and 'above board?' Why? because they knew it was something that the Mayor, as an honest man, could not sanction, and they were bound to run it through, anyway, as a part of their unholy scheme of plunder. And that is why President Frankenfield labored hard and sarnestly with the Mayor during the recess of Monday, to induce him to hold back the nessage, because it would be fatal to the conds. That is also why City Attorney McFarland said he thought the Mayor might have waited until after the election."

"Why all this fear of publicity? Why all this keeping things dark, if there was nothing in the contract to be ashamed of? Does not the whole affair show on its face comivance and deceit for the purpose of defrauding the citizens?" ANOTHER CLINCHER.

The Herald of August 28, 1889, publishe the following:
Higher than Gilderoy's Kite — Citizens
Changing their Minds by the Dozen on Mayor Hazard's Exposure of the Rose

Mayor Hasard's Exposure of the Rose Contract.

"If an advocate of the Ballona-route bonds has fondly imagined, prior to yesterday, that his pet scheme could by any chance carry, he was too wise to back his views by risking even one poor little yellow eagle on the proposition. If there were any who thought so after the contract with Rose was published yesterday, and after the Mayor's message had laid bare the unheard-of way in which that had been railroaded through, they were not very noisy in proclaiming that fact on the street corners. It had the effect of a revelation on a devotee on the minds of all sorts of citizens when they read the papers yesterday morning."

AN OPEN LETTER.

AN OPEN LETTER.

The following was published in The Tames and Heraid of August 30, 1889:

"An Open Letter—Mayor Hazard Answers the Sewer Committee."

"This committee published an answer to the Mayor's message, and this is an extract from the Mayor's reply thereto:

"There is no escaping the conclusion that the city has been foolishly bound hand and foot by agiot of boys, who, in their anxiety to get the handling of several missions of money, have fost their heads, and left the bars down, and I have but one comment te make to the people who will be called on soon to pay for all this foolishness—beware!"

AND THE PEOPLE DID BEWARE.

AND THE PEOPLE DID BEWARE.

AND THE PEOPLE DID BEWARE.

And the people did beware and defeated the bonds and saved thereby a million dollars of indebtedness, and also saved all the sewage which would have been wasted forever, the fertilizing effect of which is worth to the city a million dollars more, and when Mr. Hazard put it down at a million saved he certainty under estimated it by one-half.

The people made no mistake then in taking his advice, and it is not believed they will make any mistake Monday, when they come to pass their approval or disapproval of the acts of a public official who stood by them firmly under every and all circumstances, and this is only one of the many acts performed by this public servant. A great district is growing up on the Centinela, where all this sowage is being used and who can estimate its worth when all the internal sewer system is connected therewith in dry years like the one just passed? The organette should dig up some more of Mr. Hazard's record and tell the newcomers what he did that all his acts may be recalled.

A RICH FIND.

Gold Discovered in the Mountains

SOLDIERS' HOME, Nov. 28.—(Special Correspondence.) A gold excitement which is attracting the attention of a number of veteran miners has just occurred near veteran miners has just occurred near here by the discovery of a quantity of senuine gold quarts in the chain of mountains from two to four miles north. Prospecting in these hills has been going on for months past, but the matter has been kept rigidly quiet, on account, no doubt, of the land upon which the rich discoveries have been made, it being on the Mexican land grant claimed by Sepator John P. Jones and the Baker estate. Even yet all news of the find is being kept quiet, but by dint of much secreasy and perseverance, some facts have been gathered.

kept quiet, but by dint of much secresy and perseverance, some facts have been gathered.

The situation of the discoverers is near the summit of the highest range, and consists of three places where the yellow metal in paying quantities has been found. So far it is receip surface work, no great depth having been attained in any one of the three places of discovery. The prospectors, if appears, have merely been spunding the extent of the gold-bearing ledge, and, satisfied it was there, have proceeded on their way along the route and direction of the lead.

The quarts is a fined-grained bue and the gold is visible to the naked eye. Much of the quarts contains pyrites of fron and some mics.

Just what they will do with their discoveries they are at a loss to know, and they are very quietly making inquiry as to whather or not there is a discovery title in California.

Jones and Baker, or their agents, have hereofore refused to make any concessions or right to mine on their ground on terms by which the prospector can work them.

As soon as this question can be settled and they can secure the proper or legal authority to work, mining will command in express, and from present indications will be see a small out of the ordinary.

Cogent Reasons with a Large K. Cogent Reasons with a Large K.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 30, 1894.—(To the Editor of The Times:) Allow me to present in a condensed form what I gather are the logical reasons that should compel all taxpayers to support Mr. Ryan, vis:

Mr. Ryan is from Galesburg, III.

Mr. Ryan is honored among his intimates as "de jedge."

Mr. Ryan is the rich man's friend.

Mr. Bryan is the rich man's friend.

Mr. Ryan will increase salaries.

Mr. Ryan will decrease taxes 25 per cent.

Mr. Ryan's position as a "sympathizer" is well known.

Mr. Ryan will adopt for city use the same system of accounts that enables him to successfully direct his own extensive and complicated affairs. The "jedge" wears a "Stetson."

Mr. Ryan's surprising ability as a lawyer has compelled the reward it deserves.

With rare forethought, investing these earnings of industry with the same business acumen, shrewd common sense and practical knowledge of affairs that he so generously proposes to devote for a time to the direction of the city government, Mr. Ryan finds himself at last with a substantial interest in the community.

Although he has not been with us more than seven or eight years, still Mc. Ryan has in his furnished grown on Hill street

Although he has not been with us more than seven or eight years, still Mr. Ryan has in his furnished room on Hill street receipts showing that, during the past few years he has paid into the city treasury, as taxes, the sum of one dollar and forty cents ($1.40.)

Mr. Ryan is not hampered in his actions and movements by those "hostages to fortune," wife, children, home.

With these cogent facts in his favor (any many others could be adduced) Mr. Ryan's friends are certain that the intelligent voters and taxpayers of Los Angeles will honor him with their support. "AS OTHERS SEE US."

Gen. Mansfield and Wife Fully Except On 19 and 19 be '70. The Jury Against Them.

The trial of the contest over the will of Mrs. Annie A. Pratt, Mrs. The Ministry of the Contestants of the Jury and the Jur Briefly summed up, the verdict of the jury is as follows:

'That the proposed will of April 28, 1881, although entirely in the handwriting of the deceased, was not properly attested and witnessed; that all alterations made to it and paragraphs inserted were done by the deceased herself prior to June 3, 1885; that she made a will in 1884, which cannot be found, but which revoked all former wills; that she attached a codicil to the document of 1881, on June 3, 1885, by which she intended to revive that instrument, and revoke that of 1884; but that at that time she was not of sound mind.

When the jury was brought into court yesterday morning, Foreman Chase handed up the findings of the jury to the sourt, who, in turn, passed them over to Clerk Blake. After they had been read, Alex Campbell, Esq., on behalf of the proponents, demanded that the jurors be polled upon the questions relating to Mrs. Pratt's mental condition, and this having been done, with the result that the verdict was shown to be unanimous, the court directed that the jurors' fees, amounting to $1152, be paid by the contestants, and, after thanking the jurors for their services, ordered that they be discharged.

Foreman Chase thereupon arose and addyssed the court as follows:

"If it may please Your Honor, in behalf of my fellow jurymen, I desire to make a few remarks; not referring to our decision. We want, as a body of jurors, to thank this court, the honorable judge, for the consideration for our wishes through this service, and for the comforts that he has conceded to us during last night. I also desire to say to this court that we were in constant session until last night at 9 o'clook, without any intermission for eating, I also desire to extend to the officers of this court and those in attendance our thanks, and especially to the balliff, who has had charge of us, for his consideration of our comforts and the hard work that we field we have gone through, as has been expressed by one here, we are very thankful that we are alive."

Although the jurors declined to be interviewed as to the points in dispute, or the methods by which they arrived at a verdict in the jury-room, after it was all over, some idea of the task involved in deciding the question they were called upon as determine, may be gathered from the fact that over 1100 ballots, were taken during the forty-eight hours the jury was out.

NEW YORK, Nov. 36.—The stock market was irregular and unsettled today and the tendency was in the main toward lower prices, the result of the day's trading being a decline ranging from %64% per cent, the latter in American Tobacco. Trading was active, but nearly half of the transactions were in Sugar. The published statements of President Havemeyer of the trust induced heavy realizations, and at the opening of business there was a rush to sell. Within three-quarters of an hour 58,000 shares changed hands, and the stock broke 3% to 83%. With the lower figure short, but there was very little other suppodt. Subsequently of 1% per cent. took place, and in the final dealings a reaction of 1% per cent.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS.

THE FOURTH ANNUAL CONVEN TION AT SANTA ANA.

Many Delegates in Attendance—The First Day's Proceedings—Inter-esting Exercises in the Evening.

SANTA ANA, Nov. 30.—(Special Correspondence.) Since the first train arrived in Santa Ana this morning, the Christian Endeavor badge has been a prominent feature on the streets of the city. The Christian Endeavor hosts of Southern California united societies of Southern California was called to order at 2 p.m. in French's Op-erahali, which is splendidly decorated for the occasion. The convention has made erahall, which is splendidly decorated for the occasion. The convention has made an auspicious beginning, and promises to be one of the most successful in every way that has ever occurred in Southern California. It is presided over by Dr. J. T. Price of Los Angeles. The opening session this afternoon was devoted to papers and addresses upon various topics of interest to Christian workers.

The evening session commenced at 7 o'clock with a prayer service on the topic, "Winning Men to Christ," led by Rev. A. W. Rider of Los Angeles.

"Our Debt to Missions," was presented and emphasized in an able manner by Miss M. L. Berry of San Francisco.

The principal event of the evening was an address by Rev. Burt Estes Howard of Los Angeles, on the subject of "Christian Citizenship." The speaker referred to various matters in which Christian voters should be interested, and held the attention of the large audience throughout his remarks.

BRADBURY AND A TWO THOU SAND DOLLAR NOTE

One of the Mementos of the "Coun tess" de Henriot Affair-Mrs. Rose Williams Wants Her Money.

It has been nearly a year now since the "Countess" Henriot made her debut in Los Angeles, and after creating a furor nore or less widespread in its undulations left the city and never came back. The young woman was of vivacious make-up, bright and accomplished enough to make an impression upon almost any susceptible young man, but human nature is fickle, and after she betook her smilling presence to other parts the void left behind became fast a mere dot on the page of mem-ory, until today it is hardly probable that local swelldom of the male sort can even recall the numberless syllables of the fair charmer's name which they house at the corner of Los Angeles and First streets where Miss de Henriot spent many days while visiting in Southern California. Mrs. Rose Williams conducts the house, and here it is said that John Bradbury paid his calls to the Countess.

Mrs. Williams holds a promissory note for $2000 which is signed by young Bradbury, and she has brought suit to recover the amount due, and an attachment has been levied on the Bradbury Block to secure the satisfaction of any judgment that may be obtained.

Yesterday afternoon a Times reporter went down to Mrs. Williams's lodginghouse to inquire into the details of the matters which gave rise to the suit. Entering by way of the side door he climbed the stairs and rang the bell. A feminine voice called out that some one would come in a moment, and while the owner of the voice was adjusting her clothing preparatory to emerging into the hallway, the reporter waited. Very soon Mrs. Williams came out. The reporter easily recognized her for he had a vivid recollection of having called at the place a year before for the purpose of securing an interview with the mysterious woman who wore black pearls and called herself the Countess.

The landlady was guarded in the replies she gave to questions asked about the note upon which she had commended suit. "Please see my attorney," she said, "and get him to tell you about it." Then she thought a moment and then added, meditatively, "I don't understand why Mr. Bradbury should not pay the note. It's due, and I understand that he has plenty of money."

"Where is the Countess now?" asked the reporter innocently.

of money."
"Where is the Countess now?" asked the "Where is the Counters now?" asked the reporter innocently.

There was no hesitation on Mrs. Williams's part, as she replied, "I really am not sure. I heard last that she had left this country and gone to Europe, but I am not certain that the story is true."

"You do not care to say anything about how you happened to take Bradbury's note?"

"Not now; if the matter comes to trial you may hear something more about it.

you may hear something more about it. There may be something interesting to tell then.

And Mrs. Rose Williams smiled a siggestive smile that foreboded no good for "Mallory."

MUSICAL MENTION.

The Fuller-Blair trio gave their second concert at Blanchard-Fitzgerald Hall last evening. The pretty music room was most artistically arranged and decorated, and among the audience were most of the prominent musical people of the city. Mrs. Washington Berry, who was to act as the vocalist of the evening, was unable to be present, and her place was excellently filled by Miss Grace Remington Davis, whose rich soprano voice is always instened to with pleasure. There are tew, it any, vocalists in the city who can surpass Miss Davis, and indeed, she would rank as a finished artist anywhere. Her votes is full and rich, with tones that are exceedingly pure. A most exquisite thing is "The Butterfly," by Popper, a cello solo, which was rendered by Mr. Blair. Miss Helen Fuller handled her violin in her usual finished manner, and Miss Kate Fuller'a perfect sympathy and barmony with the instrument she is accompanying, make her invaluable as an accompanying. A high order of music afways prevaits at these concerts, and they are much appreciated by those who have a love for the divine art. Following was the programme: Violin-scants, op. 13; lento deforce, allegred vivace, allegred tranquillo, allegre animato (Bdvard Grieg.)

Songs, (a) "Were I a Streamlet" (Lloyd) (b) "Wild Briar Bush" (Bohm.)
Soli for violoncello (a) "Romance Sans Parcles" (Davidoff) (b) "Swan Song" (St.-Saens) (c) "The Butterfly" (Popper.)
Trio, op. 15, No. 1, con moto moderato, andantino moderato, resoluto con fucco (Anton Rubinstein) died November 20, 1894, aged 64 years.

THE EVANGELISTS.

INTEREST IN THE MEETINGS FULLY SUSTAINED.

Both Mr. Yatman and Mr. Pratt Continue to Draw Large Audiences-Two Eloquent Sermons.

Last night at the First M. E. Church Evangelist Yatman spoke to a good audi-ence on the word "Come," founding his remarks upon Revelations xxii, 17. Among his remarks the speaker said: "There are three 'Comes' I wish to speak of to you tonight. 'Come out,' 'come in,' and

That may be the case with some of you tonight. It may be to some one the last message they will ever receive. The last time they will ever hear this kind invitation to come. Church. A large audience gathered at the First Baptist Church last evening to listen to Baptist Church last evening to listen to Evangelist Pratt, who spoke on "Forgiveness," his text being taken from Matthew Ix. 2: "Son be of good cheer, thy sins be forgiven thee." Mr. Pratt said that there were times in our lives when the words. "I forgive you" were the sweetest in the world. So God forgives us. Nature and the law know nothing of forgiveness. The ground of forgiveness is the blood of Jesus Christ. God remembers our sins no more against us forever. This is a blessed fact revealed to us in God's word. This earnest appeal was responded to by many who went into the after meeting.

AFTERNOON SERVICE.

AFTERNOON SERVICE. The last Bible reading of the revival services under Mr. Pratt was held yesterday afternoon and a large and deeply-interested audience was present. The subject was, "How far shall we be reparate from the world;" taken from Exodus xi, 7; and showing, as Mr. Pratt said, that the first difference between the Christian and the world was a life and death difference. Then there was a difference of space. The Israelites went three days journey into the wilderness. Then again the difference was made of the Lord as shown in Exodus xiv, 19. The appeal was very urgent for a complete separation from the world. services under Mr. Pratt was held

These Bible readings have been a mighty uplift spiritually to the church.

Mr. Pratt is to address the young people in the First Baptist Church Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The topic is to be "Influence." It is hoped that many young people will avail themselves of the opportunity to hear this address. The different Baptist churches of the city have been invited to participate in this service.

A Dull Day's Business at the City Hall.

The Arroyo de Los Reyes Demanding rompt Attention from the Authorities.

Matters of Interest at the Court-Judge York—At the U.S. Building.

A short meeting of the City Council was the only event of especial interest at the City Hall yesterday. The coming city election appeared to demand a good deal of attention from most of the Councilmen. At the Courthouse there was the usual routine business. AT THE CITY HALL.

Arroyo de Los Reyes. THE DRAIN WILL SOON REQUIRE ATTENTION.

One of the matters about town, that promises at an early date to urgently demand attention of the City Council, is the Arroyo de los Reyes storm drain. From year to year the increased quantities of storm water that have by means of this channel found their way to parts of the Fifth Ward and other places where not wanted, have caused serious complaint, and the matter of refuse from the oil wells which now is carried on the top of the stream running in the arroyo is making the condition much more serious. In one or two instances beautiful lawns have been very seriously damaged by the oil refuse which has been carried to such lawns by the water used for irrigating.

Few people probably would be able to follow the route of the Arroyo de los Reyes at the present time. It is along the larger part of its course piped, in some places by the city and in other places by the parties through whose property it runs. In many places there has been done a great deal of grading, and the pipe has been so thoroughly covered that there are no external traces of its existence.

Generally speaking, the water running in the arroyo is supplied from springs, which are numerous in the neighborhood of Second-street Park. In time of heavy rains, however, the water precipitated on a large area of hilly land finds its way into the arroyo. The large amount of grading done within the past few years in the district thus drained has gradually increased the rate of speed with which the water which falls within the territory finds its way into the arroyo and has severely tested its capacity.

The arroyo, it will be remembered, starts at Second-street Park, which it drains. From there it runs in a southwesterly direction partly through pipes and some of the way in an open ditch to a point a few feet north of Second street and a short distance west of Beaudry avenue, where it again enters a pipe.

The quantity of oil carried on the water of the arroyo must be quite large, for it can be seen collecting quite rapidly in the pool caused by the enlarge One of the matters about town, that promises at an early date to urgently de-mand attention of the City Council, is the Normal School. Along there it is forty-inches in internal diameter. Upon reaching a point about three or four hundred feet northerly from the Normal School buildings the arroyo again follows an open ditch, and there again the oil carried on the surface is so great in quantity as to be worth saving.

For this purpose the ditch for a distance of about twenty feet was widened so as to make the flow of the water less rapid. At the end of the pool where the water passes out the pool is dammed with a board so that the current shall pass under the board and the surface of the water in the pool remain at rest, thus facilitating the gathering of the oil.

That the petroleum was being gathered there in paying quantities was evident, for there had been saved what appeared to be as much as eighty barrels of the black liquid. The time occupied in seth.

for there had been saved what appeared to be as much as eighty barrels of the black liquid. The time occupied in gathering that amount could not be definitely learned, but it did not seem to have been very long. A short distance downstream, and directly in the rear of the Normal School buildings, there were further evidences of a few bucketfuls of the petroleum being saved from the surface of the stream.

It could be clearly observed, however that all the petroleum was not removed from the water in this manner, for man, black specks of it could be seen floating down-stream.

from the water in this manner, for many black specks of it could be seen floating down-stream.

From a point behind the grounds mentioned the arroyo is piped throughout the rest of its course. Most of the way there are no outside indications of where it goes. The route is southerly, near Hope street to Sixth, where old residents will recollect it formerly ran through a brick bridge. From there it runs southeasterly to a place near Grand avenue, and southerly close to Grand avenue to a point a short distance north of Pico street, where it turns and follows in a southwesterly direction to the intersection of Eighteenth and Figueroa streets.

At the northwest corner of that intersection the arroyo, which runs there in a thirty-two-inch pipe, discharges into the zanja running southerly on that side of Figueroa street in a twenty-two-inch pipe. At ordinary times the discharge is not sufficient to cause the combined flow to exceed the capacity of the zanja pipe, which latter, it will be observed, is ten inches less in diameter.

When, however, the rains increase the amount of water running into the arroys.

less in diameter. n, however, the rains increase the

When, however, the rains increase the amount of water running into the arroyo, the discharge of it into the zanja is consequently increased, and what water camnot be carried in the zanja overflows into Figueroa street and runs southerly along that thoroughfare.

There were plain traces of the oil in the box or manhole where the arroyo discharged into the zanja, which from there to Washington street is piped. Below Washington street the zanja runs in a ditch formed by a double cement coping with cement bottom. In places where gates have been used to divert the water into lateral ditches the cement work is to be seen a good deal smeared with oil. Should a heavy rain set in and wash large quantities of the petroleum into the arroyo the result can only be conjectured. Not only would the oil be likely to make itself unpleasantly apparent in the zanja but the overflow onto Figueroa street would be likely to mar the beauty of that thoroughfare.

street would be likely to mar the beauty of that thoroughfare.

A peculiar bit of history is connected with the discharging of the arroyo into the zanja at Eighteenth and Figureau streets. About ten years ago the zanja ran through a flume there, and the arroyo followed a course running to the westerly and southwesterly, it running under the fume.

diverted into it. One of the employees of the Water Overseer's office removed the obstruction so that the waters would flow in the former channel, but the obstruction was again placed there in the night, and was permitted to remain.

Since that time the old channel of the arroyo below there has been filled in by grading and for a considemble distance entirely obliterated. The discharge of the arroyo into the zanja has in time of heavy rains caused the flooded condition of Figueroa street in the manner indicated that has given rise te so much complaint.

The City Council.

The City Council.

The City Council held a short special meeting yesterday morning, at which the pay-rolls of the police and park departments were approved.

A representative of the street sweeping contractor was heard in reference to the complaints that the sweeping of the streets is not being done according to contract. He said that Mr. Hewlett, the contractor, was sick in the northern part of the State and therefore unable to appear in his own behalf. He said he thought there must be some understanding in regard to the way the work was being done. As the hearing was merely informal no action was taken on the matter by the Council.

The Board of Public Works did not have its weekly meeting as usual yesterday, but will perhaps meet today.

The changing of the gutter at Grand avenue and Jefferson street so as to divert the storm water flowing there in a different direction, is being done under direction of the Street Superintendent.

The Finance Committee of the City Council is busy working on the matter of fire insurance on the City Hall, the policies for which as last issued will soon expire. The committee has not yet prepared its report, but it is expected it will do so, by some time next week.

J. T. Holbrook has filed a communication to the City Council, giving notice that he desires to withdraw as a surety on the bond of the street sweeping contractor.

York issued an order yesterday morning, to the effect that on and after January 22 next, on which date the first batch of cases will be set, all cases wherein juries are required will be placed on a jury calendar, and taken up and tried in their order as reewhed. Another jury calendar will be made up on March 26, and all cases not upon the January calendar will be placed on that one.

upon the January calendar will be placed on that one.

Hitherto, in many instances where a jury has been summoned in a civil action, either the parties were not ready, or for some other reason the trial could not be proceeded with, yet the jurors having been in attendance were entitled to their perdiem and mileage fees, although their services were not actually rendered. Under the new system, however, should the parties to one action not be ready to proceed, the next case on the calendar will be called and tried, so that the jurors will hot receive fees for nothing.

JUDGMENT FOR DEFENDANTS. Judge Van Dyke heard the case of John Hawkins et al. vs. H. S. Clement et al.,

Hawkins et al. vs. H. S. Clement et al., an action to enforce satisfaction of a judgment obtained in City Justice Austin's court in 1892, yesterday morning, and at the close of the evidence, ordered judgment for the defendants therein.

The plaintiffs claimed that in April, 1892, an execution was issed to Clements as constable, by virtue of which he levied an attachment upon a restaurant on West. Second street, and that the property was subsequently sold by him, but that he failed to satisfy the judgment out of the proceeds of said sale.

It was shown, however, for the defense that after Clements had attached the property, it was levied upon by the Sheriff in another action, and that an indemnity bond having been filed by the parties to the second attachment, he turned it over to the Sheriff, and had nothing further to do with the matter. ELECTION CONTEST

BLECTION CONTEST.

The first contest arising out of the recent election held on November 6 last was filed with the County Clerk yesterday by Walter Rechtwig, one of the candidates for the office of constable for the township of Wilmington.

He alleges in his petition for a recount of the votes cast in the precincts of San Pedro and Wilmington; that P. H. Schwartz, another candidate for the same office, received 184 votes, while he only received 182, but that through the misconduct of the election officers in challenging voters, etc., he was deprived of at least four votes, thereby losing the election.

Court Notes.

In Department One yesterday morning, Ethan Allen Feeler and Lucien T. Healey were duly arraigned by Judge Smith upon the charge of having murderred Camille Ellkan at Long Beach, on the night of November 22 last, and were allowed un-til Monday next in which to plead thereto. Federal Courts. INSUFFICIENT INDICTMENT IN THE PLATT-HARRIS CASE.

The jury in the Platt-Harris case, according to the instructions of the court, cound a verdict of not guilty yesterday

A technical point was raised as to the necessity of making the allegations in the indictment more complete in order to show that the defendants intended to misuse the mails in their blackmailing schemes. Authorities being produced to sustain the point, a motion that the jury be instructed to find a verdict of not guilty was granted.

In this case the defendants were accused of conspiring to violate the postal laws. There is another charge pending, the trial on which will not be taken up for some time to come, as Senator White leaves soon for Washington, and his attendance is necessary as counsel in the case.

tendance is necessary as counsel in the case.

The motion granted by the court was made yesterday morning, Senator White, W. T. Williams, Henry Gage and W. A. Cheney, Esqa., attorneys for the defendants and United States Attorney George Denis being present. The argument was brief, and after a number of authorities had been cited the motion was taken under advisement until afternoon.

At 1:30 o'clock the court met again and Judge Ross read the following decision: "One of the constituent elements of the offense denounced by the statute upon which the indictment in this case is based is the intended use of the United States mails in aid and furtherance of the fraud-is the intended use of the United States mails in aid and furtherance of the fraudulent scheme. It is, therefore, essential that the indictment allege directly and not inferentially, or by way of recital, that the scheme included the intended use of inferentially, or by way of recital, that the scheme included the intended use of the mail.

"From a careful examination of the indictment, I am unable to find any direct allegation that the fraudulent scheme that the defendants are therein alleged to have devised included the use of the postoffices of the United States in its aid or furtherance. It is alleged in more than one place in the indictment that in pursuance of the alleged scheme to defraud, the defendants placed and caused to be placed in the United States postoffice at Los Angeles the letter set out in the indictment, and also that the letter so deposited was to further and effect the object of the conspiracy, which is alleged to be to misuse the postoffice establishment of the United States by devising a scheme to defraud. In all of this there is no allegation that the fraudulent scheme itself included the intended use of of the United States or the states by devising a scheme to de-fraud. In all of this there is no allegation that the fraudulent scheme itself included the intended use of of the United States mails, which element, as has been said, is an essential constituent of the statutory offense. For this reason the court is obliged to instruct the jury to render a verdict of not guilty."

Mr. Denis states that he had consented to a reduction of Platt's bail on a former occasion to $500, and as the defendant was still in jail and it would be some time before the next case was reached, he asked the court to reduce the bail to $300. The order was made and the court ad-journed to Monday.

The proceedings commenced yesterday morning at 10:30 o'clock in the District Court with the examination of a Mr. Har-ris, a jeweler, who was at one time in partnership with the defendant, Platt. His testimony, which was merely a reiteration of that riven at the first trial in Sentern.

partnership with the defendant, Platt. His testimony, which was merely a reiteration of that given at the first trial in September last, was to the effect that Platt had not only confided the whole of the blackmailing scheme to him, but had also asked his co-operation, assuring him that there was $2000 in it for each of them. Platt, at the same time, told him that he was working Mrs. Crandall, and suggested that they make a "double-header" of the case by working both Crandall and his wife. When witness asked Platt what Emil would have to say to all this, he replied nonchalantly: "Oh! he won't be in it." Platt led him to believe that Emil had the "stuff" in his possession, but only intended to use it as a lever for the extortion of money from Crandall.

Witness identified the anonymous "Lady Friend" letter, to which Crandall had referred in his testimony, as being in Platt's handwriting.

T. A. Lewis, assistant postmaster

Friend" letter, to which Crandall had referred in his testimony, as being in Platt's handwriting.

T. A. Lewis, assistant postmaster, was called for the purpose of identifying the postmarks upon the various letters introduced in evidence, so that there could be no question as to the fact that they had been through the mails.

This closed the case for the government, and as had been proviously agreed upon, preparations were at once made by the defendant's counsel to fight the case upon the legal grounds outlined by Senator White on Wednesday last.

After a recess of fifteen minutes, which was declared in order that counsel might obtain their law books and hunt up authorities, Senator White formally moved the court for a dismissal of the case, and asked that the jury be instructed to acquit the defendants upon the ground that the indictment did not state facts sufficient to constitute an offense against the United States.

In support of this motion Senator White indictment did not state facts sufficient to constitute an offense against the United States.

In support of this motion Senator White argued that the indictment failed to show any conspiracy against the United States, but on the contrary alleged facts which showed that no offense against the United States laws was contemplated. Furthermore, the evidence failed to disclose that so far as Harris was concerned, he had any knowledge that the mails were to be used, or that they were used, in pursuance of any conspiracy, nor had any conspiracy been shown.

It devolved upon the government in a case of this kind to show that a conspiracy existed between the two defendants to mail a particular letter, otherwise the court could have no jurisdiction.

United States Attorney Denis replied that the fact that a letter was deposited in the mails by either of the defendants was alone sufficient, and cited several authorities in support of his contention.

The court remarked that of course it must be shown that it was one of the constituent elements of the scheme that it was to be effected by the use of the mails.

Mr. Denis attempted to defend the phraseology of his indictment by arguing that he had followed the language of the act under which it was framed, and maintained that he was not limited to any particular part of the act

Result of the Wine-makers' Association.

What Los Angeles Makers and Dealers Have to Say on the Subject.

A Suggestion to Include the Sweet
Wine Makers of the Southern Portion of the State in the Combine.

Now that the California Wine-makers Association has become an organized and incorporated fact it is a matter of some interest to know to what extent, if any, the prices of wine in Southern California will be affected by it.

It may be stated first of all that the California Wine-makers' Association is, as the hame implies, an association of California wine-makers. Realizing the perilous condition of the wine industry a few of them met together at San Francisco

Several previous efforts at organization had failed, mainly through the fact that they were too much of a polygiotic character. They proposed to embrace not only the wine-makers, but the wine-dealers, and even the grape-growers. They discovered that such a scheme would not work. The wine-dealers wanted the biggest end of the club, so that when necessary they might beat the heads of the wine-growers into submission. Then the grape-growers, who all the time were listening patiently to the squabble for supremacy between the dealers and the makers, wanted to know where they were "going to get off." The result was the scheme fell through. The last effort being confined to the wine-makers alone has resulted in an organization which, if held together and properly managed, will be the means of saving many a wine-maker and grape-grower in California from the mortification of seeing his property pass from him under the hammer of

has resulted in an organization which, if held together and properly managed, will be the means of saving many a wine-maker and grape-grower in California from the mortification of seeing his property pass from him under the hammer of the Sheriff.

The plan proposed by this new wine association was to obtain control of eight million gallons of '94 claret, which would give it control of the output for the year, estimated to be not over fourteen million gallons. As, according to latest advices, the association has already over nine million gallons signed, they now propose to get to work and incorporate the association, if such has not been already done, in due form under the laws of California. This being done it is the intention of the association to immediately advance the price of California clarets of all grades. Whether then an advance in prices would follow here was what a Times reporter started out to learn.

C. F. A. Last was firm in his belief that by the first of January next red wines of medium quality would be held at 5 cents a gallon bigher for wholesale lots than they were being sold at today, while the higher grades, he said, would easily be worth 10 cents a gallon more than was now being saked for them. "Our clarets," he said, "have always been worth more than they have been selling for, but owing 10 the fact that a few large dealers in San Francisco have for many years bended together to bear prices, it has been impossible for the wine-maker to help himself, it was a case of Hobson's choice, take what the band of San Francisco dealers offered him or keep his wine. As other buyers could not give more than this band of dealers was paying, the wine-maker had to take what was offered to him and look thankful. But this new association," continued Mr. Last, "gives them a renewed lease of life, and will perhaps, through better prices, help them to get rid of the mortagages the most of them, if not every one of them, have been struggling under."

thing of this kind of an association had not been organized the California wine-maker would have found his occupation in the condition of that of Othello's, gone. Prices for clarets have got so low that not many of them in Sonoma, Napa, Santa Prices for clarets have got so low that not many of them in Sonoma, Napa, Santa Clara, and other counties of the State, and even in Southern California, could have stood it much longer." Mr. Pironi was of the opinion that the ultimate success of the association would largely depend on its working capital, but if enough of that could be secured to tide things over the next year there could be no doubt but that it would be the means of placing the wine business of California on a secure and paying basis. "Yes," he said, "the immediate effect of an advance in prices of clarets in San Francisco will be to stiffen prices here, and it may be assumed that the advance here will be equally as great for an equally good article of claret, as the advance there. There is one thing more," added Mr. Pironi, "that in my opinion, the California Wine-makers" Association should do, and that is to extend their operations so as to take in the sweet wine manufacturers of Southern California."

At the Los Angeles Wine Company similar views were held. "It is very natural," said Mr. Baer, manager of the company, "that any advance in clarets should be followed here by a corresponding advance. It would be the same in any other branch of business, and it is not likely that wines will prove an exception." Mr. Baer also emphasized the fact that it was a good thing for the wine-unkers to get together and form this association. "They have been cutting each others' throats," he said, "as long as they could stand up to it, and if they had kept it up much longer there would not have been anything left of them."

It is the opinion of many wine-dealers here that those wine-makers who have not

How He Distinguished Himself During the Strike.

SAN DIEGO, Nov. 30.—(Special Correspondence.) Lieut. F. B. McKenna of the Fifteenth Infantry, U.S.A., is at Hotel del Coronado on a five months' sick leave. This beardless young officer, who was graduated from West Point in 1893, is the son of Judge McKenna of the United States Circuit. Court. San Francisco. Within almost a year after his graduation Lieut. McKenna distinguished himself in fulfilling his duty in a way which has won the applause not only of army officers throughout the land, but also the warm commendation of law-loving citizens. It was at Chicago during the July strikes. Tens of thousands of angry. reckless strikers surrounded the handful of Uncle Sam's boys and committed mean, unmanly depredations in the way of destroying the property of the railroads and other corporations. It was during one of these attempts at destruction that the brutal ruffians ran in front of Lieut. McKenna. To them this young officer, who is not obviscally robust, appeared but a straw in their pathway. Their overbearing, obtuse, undiscerning minds evidently did not take a square look into McKenna's cyes and face. If they had they might have appreciated the meaning of facial evidence as it pertains to character and realized that McKenna was not the kind of human buzzeaw, as it were, which it is healthy to monkey with. On they came—about twenty burly, yelling, cursing men, demanding that the officer surrender a switch desired by the strikers in order to wreck cars. The officer was alone. The ruffians ware ordered to halt. They did not obey. Dengerously near to the young man did the wretches come ere his revolver, aimed at their heads caused them to halt a moment. The thought of cold lead made them think a bit. Head strong to the verge of madness they advanced once more. "Hait!" was McKenna's sharp command. His eyes shapped, and as the first

THE EDUCATION OF THE HUMAN FEET.

New Signaling System for Cruisers-The Effect of the Indian Type in Reproduc-tion.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(Special Correspondence.) Dr. Gerard Smith, who has for, many years reads a study of the numerous aliments of the human foot, says he has found the Turkish bath room a most favorable place for making his observations. He believes that if people could go through life with the feet as they are at birth, that is to say, with no change of development of fresh powers in the feet or spine arising from the assumption of the erect posture, the feet would require no education for fresh duties. But man, in the natural order of evolution, has learned to walk, and the foot has to meet the strain imposed upon it. It is in the fulfilment of this task that the foot becomes in many cases malformed and ineffective. Dr. Smith noticed that a boy was seldom seen at the baths who had flat feet, or who failed to place the weight of the feet properly, unless in the case of boys of very weak muscular powers and rapid overgrowth, and this and other facts convinced him that, as a rule it is in adult life that the utility of the fact becomes impaired by faulty habits and neglect of proper exercise. In powers and rapid overgrowth, and this and other facts convinced him that, as a rule- it is in adult life that the utility of the fact becomes impaired by faulty habits and neglect of proper exercise. In observing the walking of barefooted men, the skilled ear can learn much by the sound of the footsteps. The perfected re-frient and silent footfall is very rare. It is a singular fact that the actual weight of the men has little to do with this point. Some of the most elastic and noiseless footfalls are observed in men of great stature and muscular development, and it is well known that the stoutest men often make the lightest dancers. Dr. Smith quotes an instance of a man over six feet in height, 40 years of age and 196 pounds in weight, who makes far less noise in running upstairs and moving about the house than a small maid servant. The main cause of this inelastic tread is that people get into the habit of excusing the muscular system from carrying the increasing bulk of their bodies, and seek to shift it almost entirely upon the bones and joints of the legs. The posture adopted by the majority of town dwellers, of habitually standing on the heels, and resting bulk of their bodies, and seek to shift it almost entirely upon the bones and joints of the legs. The posture adopted by the majority of town dwellers, of habitually standing on the heels, and resting bulk ightly upon the front part of the foot, takes away from the muscles of the calf their proper share of the work; puts the arch of the foot into a state of inactivity; restricts the natural spreading out of the toes and front of the foot, and causes undue jarring of the body in walking upon hard pawments. The well trained runner presents a distinct contrast to all this. His light and elastic step shows that he maintains the erect posture by an even distribution of his weight over all the muscles of his legs, which spring and neturalize all jar to the body as he walks. His heels are presend to the ground; and when the weakened foot takes to aching, the t and the ball of the foot) have a mosticlous influence, as they are apmily designed to prevent the free play exercise of the instep. The civilized ought to learn to give his foot the of thinking, if moccasins were to

TREATMENT OF NOXIOUS GASES

AND VAPORS.
George McGowan gives some inter Dr. George McGowan gives some interesting information in regard to the important work that has been done in late years in the way of preventing the escape of noxious gases and vapors into the atmosphere, with a corresponding benefit to the health of the community, and a large saving of valuable material. Some seven years ago, an ingenious scheme was worked out for the recovery of sulphur from alkall waste, immense heave of which used to accumulate around fikall works. This rapidly-increasing "waste" heap—there was one and a half to two tons of "waste" for every ton of soda produced—decomposed quickly in the atmosphere, especially when exposed to the tons of "waste" for every ton of sods produced—decomposed quickly in the air mosphere, especially when exposed to the acid vapors still found to some extent in the vicinity of chemical works, and the result was that the nauseous and poisonous gas, sulphuretted hydrogen, was thrown off in darge quantities, and people living near the works were almost asphyxiated. The process been improved, and it is applied so effectively that $5,000 tims of sulphur are now recovered every year. The process, however, is capable of further improvement, as about 15 per cent of the sulphur is allowed to escape into the atmosphere as sulphursted hydrogen, as formerly. The exit gases are mixed with air, and passed through a fire, converting the rank-smelling gas into the manufacture of sulphate of some extent, in making sulphyric acid. A remarkable utilization of waste product is seen in the manufacture of sulphate of ammonia. The yield of Great Britain and Ireland in 1898 was 152,763 tons, valued at over $10,000,000, and three-fourths of this was derived from the ammonia liquor of the gasworks, the remainder being from shale, tron, coke and carbonizing works.

NEW SIGNALING SYSTEM FOR CRUIS-

ERS.

The experiments which are being carried on at Portsmouth, Eng., in the interchange of communication between ships at varying distances, give promise of a complete revolution in naval signaling.

For example, supported complete revolution in naval signaling. For example, supposing there are four cruisers, ten miles apart, and the flagship another ten miles off, there will be 3 chair fifty miles long. By use of a cupher core, the farthest cruiser can, if she discovers the wherabouts and course of the enemy, pass a signal down the line, with almost the instantaneousness of the stelegraph, and the admired can take action promptly. So, by having four cruisers on each side of him, the commander of the fleet can cover and secure instant communication over a radius of 100 miles, and so on, indefinitely. The plan is so accurate that there can be no mistake in the reading of signals, while the amount of time saved is a most important consideration. THE EFFECT OF THE INDIAN TYPE

THE EFFECT OF THE INDIAN TYPE IN REPRODUCTION.

The researches of the United States Department of Ethnology daye shed a new light on the process of racial amitgamation, which is going on in this and other lands. It appears that, contrary to the word amount and the popular belief, the fertility of the half-breed Indians is not less than that of the pure red and white races, but even more, and hence there is no likelihood of the Indian race dying out. Another singular fact, which is often observed in the crossing of strains of inferior animals, is that the half-breeds are of taller stature than the pure Indians, or the white French race, from which they have chiefly aprend. Stature is not inherited in such a manner that the size of the hybrid, or offspring, is intermediate between the sizes of the parent stocks. There is a greater diversity of size in the mixed race than in the pure races, and it is further remarkable that the face of the half-blood tends to reproduce that of one or other of the parent stocks, rather than an intermediate type. Moreover, the Indian type has a stronger influence on the offspring than the white, and the half-bloods "take after" the red man most of all. Strange to say, Indian children are, as a rule, taller than half-breed children, who come to maturity more slowly. It is noted that in so far as intermediate types of face are produced, which happens comparatively seldem, they are of a uniform character.

THE WHOLESOME APPLE.

Dr. G. R. Searles is an ardent advocate for the exple as medicine. He says few people know of the remarkably efficacious medicinal properties of the fruit. Everybody, even those of a delicate system, should know that to eat apples just before retiring for the night is about the most wholesome thing they can do. The apple is an excellent brain food, because it has more phosphoric acid in easily digestible shape than any other vegetable known. It excites the action of the liver, promotes sound and healthy sleep, and thoroughly disinfects the mouth. It has a further long list of virtues, and one of which would justfy its constant use. It regulates the surplus acids of the stomach, helps the kidney secretions and prevents calculus growths. It also wards off indigestion, and is one of the best known preventives of diseases of the throat. Dr. Searles says he has not exhausted the virtues of the apple when he adds that next to the orange and the lemon, it is the bost antidote for the thirst and craving of the person addicted to the alcohol or the oplum habit.

MACHINE FOR MAKING SMALL QUANTITIES OF BUTTER.

A German inventor has turned out a machine for the making of butter in small quantities. A receptacle containing the cream is attached to a bar, which has a rapid reciprocating motion imparted to it by means of a revolving crank and connecting rod. A wheel is turned by hand, and the connecting rod is moved backward and forward; this motion is communicated to the receptacle, the contents of which are speedily converted into butter.

PHENOMENA OF THE UPPER AIR.
Richard Inwards looks for great results in mesorological lore from the experiments of Hermitis in trying to secure more absolute data concerning the phenomena of the upper air. It will be remembered that M. Hermite sent up experimental believes which carried instruments so contrived as to register the various changes of conditions through which the balloons passed. One of these balloons rose to a height of ten miles, where the pressure of the air was only 4.1 inches of mercury, and the temperature 104 deg. Fabr. below zero. It was made evident, by striking an average on the records of the balloons, that although there are considerable variations in the temperature gradient below 12,000 feet above the sea level, the temperature decreases pretty regularly above that height, falling 1 deg. for every rise of 330 feet into the air.

A SELF-RECORDING BULLET.

Herr Neeson of Berlin has hit upon a very ingenious device for registering the oscillations of a bullet during its passage through the air. The bullet contains a tiny photographic plate, very sensitive, and a pin hole in the front allows a ray of light to fall on the plate. In this way a wandering line is traced on the plate which tells all about the gyrations of the hall from its leaving the rifle muzzle until it falls to earth.

CAPES THAT ARE AIRY.

The tailor-made gowns fashioned in a good, close cloth, cut in the coat and skirt manner, the fullness of the latter being arranged in three flat box pleats at the back and the weight lessened by the absence of any sort of lining, are the most stylish. The three-quarter tight-fitting coat is braided in military fashion. Accompanying a dress of this cut in cornflower gray, a large black hat, with a silk beaver crown and large plumes looks well.

The liking for plumes and feather trimmings increases instead of decreases and it is not surprising, for manufacturers have surpassed themselves in the beauty of the creations. Nothing is more becoming to young or old then the delicate soft tips nestling against neck, arms or hair black displaying a white skin to perfection, and when judiciously used toning an indifferent one to great beauty. Close curled ostrich feather edging for neck and sleeves is offered of a make that is so secured that it is almost impossible for to come out of curl or look untidy.

Some unfavorable criticism of the golf cape is made, it being claimed that the garment does not afford the protection that severe weather makes extremely desirable. But the women who do not admire its appearance and go in for something more sightly, are inclined toward capes that are far less comfortable. The cape pictured here is a much favored sort, and it is extremely ornamental, but its usefulness in warding off the cold is far less than the golf's. It suffices for mild days, however, and is undeniably handsome. The model chosen for consideration here was of heavy black plush lined with old rose surah, ir frimmed with two-pointed revers that merely reach the hem and two wider ones at the top. Over the shoulders came three circular epaulettes faced with old rose surah, and the back was left quite plain. Revers and epaulettes were edged with narrow jet galoon and the wider, directoire revers were emproidered to match. Bands of sable formed the collar and edged the fronts.

Ben Jonson was the Brücklayer, from his occupation. He was also designated Father Ben, Honest Ben, Old Ben, Rare Ben, Young Horace, the English Juvenal, the Father of Poets, the Soul of Numbers and the English Coryphaeus.

John Milton was called the English Homer, the English Mastiff, the Pedagogue, Samson Agonistes, Homer's Rival, Gospel Gun and many others, arising mostly from the controversial character of his works or from his great poem.

Thomas Aquinas, on account of his skill in diadects, and from his personal qualities was nicknamed Dr. Angelicus, the Dumb Ox, Eagle of Divines, Father of Moral Philosophy, the Fifth Doctor of the Church and the Second Augustine.

Shakespeare is called Bard of Avon, in allusion to the stream that flows by Statiford. He has also been called the Divine, English Terence, Fancy's Child, Heir of Fame, The Matchless, Swan of Avon, Upstart Crow and scores of other nicknames.

Edward, the son of Edward III., was called the Black Prince by his contemporaries; not, as is commonly supposed, from the color of his armor, but from the mercilesmess with which he carried on his wars, and from the many crimes he is believed to have committed.

William Henry Harrison was called Hard Cider, from the favorite tipple during his canvass for Prestdent; Log Cabin, from the minature cabins hauled to the meetings; Tippecane and Old Tip, from the victory he won, and was also called the Washington of the West by his admirers.

Richelleu was the Cardinal of the Huguenots, the Fontiff of Calvinists, and the Huguenot Pope, from the favor he showed to the reformers; the Cardinal of Ateleist, from his supposed lack of religious opinions; the King's King and the Mayor of of the Palace, from his influence at court.

"Did you tell her which train you gould take!"

"Oh, yes; I made sure to tell her to meet me at the New York afternoon train. They isn't more'n one train, is they?"

She was caim for a while after the neighbor had assured her she would try to help her find Lyddy, but presently she remarked, "How'll I let 'em know I want to git off at New York?" Just then the conductor, passed and she selsed him by the coat sleeve, exclaiming: "Look here, mister, I've got to land in New York. Won't you please stop the train for me when we git there?"

"All right, ma'am," said the man soberly.

"You'll not forgit?"

"Trust me for that. I'll remember sure."

"Thank you kindly, sir," she answered gratefully. "I'm much obliged."

And the man did not smile till he left her.

A Town Scott Made Famous.

(London Telegraph:) Waverly, the historic little Surrey parish from which Sir Walter Scott named his famous novels, is fighting for its freedom. The Surrey County Council recently made an order, supported by various local bodies, joining the parish to Farnham, but an appeal was successfully made to the local government. successfully made to the local government board for an inquiry, which was held recently. The chief appellants were the representatives of the owner of Waverly Abbey, from which place can still be seen the ruins of the ancient house founded by the Cistercian monks. Waverly was stated to have only eleven separate householders and a population of fifty-one. But from time immemorial it has been a self-constituted parish, and its old-time associations and prestige as a residential district would suffer, it is urged, if it were attached to a large, straggling district, parts of which were suburbs of Aldershott.

A NERVE TONIC.

An Hour's Daily Solitude Helps a Woman Over Many a Bough Road.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—(Special Correspondence.) To be alone for a few hours of every day should be a fixed habit in a woman's life. There is a deal of benefit to be acquired from a short season of solitude, snatched amid the toil and struggle of daily existence. It is due one's selfhood, and once behind closed doors the family, friends and servants should be educated to respect the temporary seclusion.

Make yourself physically comfortable. Stretch yourself upon your couch, let the tired nerves down from their usual tension. It is well to sleep a little, but do not make an effort for repose, just let go, and fall to idle musing, child fashion, if you will. When perfect rest ensues in the peace and stillness, call yourself to order in the solitude of your own chamber through this sacred hour you may review yourself, your character, your environment, your efforts and results, without fear of criticism other than your own. Do this healthily and happily, not morbidly. Review your immediate past and present as you would reskon your accounts up to date, then muster your forces as a general would his army, in this way you, will be enabled to steady your purposes and think out the difficult paths that lead to the results you so much desire to accomplish.

It is in this preclous time alone that a woman may get individuality, originality, strength, decision, directness, stunning qualities out in the maeistrom of the world life; for stir, self consciousness, and the influence of others often defect a woman from her purpose, unless she has a coquired steadfastness of resolve as a principle.

Even in material matters, if puzzled ever a bit of work, put it aside for the hour of solitude, then at will probably open up its own method of completion to you, having your undivided attention. The proper use of solitude teaches and impatience, but as an opportunity with herself, and she as leads for the hour of waiting, when it probably open up its own method of empletion to send the same of solitude as a

FLORENCE WYNNE ELLIS. THE JERSEY REAPPEARS ELAB-OBATED.

(From Our Regular New York Fashion Correspondent.)

One garment that is a great innovation is gaining ground here. It is called the Polish blouse, is a much modified jersey and is generally worn with a jacket, though a daring use of it omits the latter. Some of our actresses are wearing it on the stage, and that is always a great point gained toward popularizing a fashion. One which, is to appear in a new play this season is of brilliant greefist jersey weave. It rolls up to the waist line, showing a scarlet lining. This roll comes quite to the waist line, showing a scarlet lining. This roll comes quite to the waist in the back and dips a little in front. The whole blouse is strewn with applique disks of heavy yellow lace act with dull red and green bronze spangles. It is worn without the Polish coat, and epaulettes of a scarlet veivet are added to conventionalize the sleeves. Often a short coat is worn and left open to show the blouse underneath. It is thus worn on the street.

Of all the coats designed for service and protection, none more fully carries out the maker's intentions than the sort shown here. Its fitted fronts hook in the center beneath a narrow astrakhan edging, and the loose fronts are garnished with cloth and braid applique in the manner indicated. They turn back in a huge rever collar which is round in back. The garment's fullness below the waist is laid in pleats, its standing collar is conamented with braid and edged with fur, and the wide gigot sleeves remain plain. The material as drawn for this column, was coffee brown cloth, but any suitable shade for coats will do as well, the lining being of a shade that harmonizes with the color chosen for the coat.

Pointing to the hat that accompanied this coat, which was ornamented to harmonize with it, the salesman remarked that the two were for a skating rig, when lee was to be had, but when there is hone the coat is worn for general use with more conventional headgear. It is surprising how late straw hats were worn this year, and one adventuresome milliner of some standing tried to foist fur-trimmed hats on the public, but the scheme failed utterly. A fashion to succeed, needs to have some backing of sense.

CHORETTE.

Quality vs. Quantity.

Quality vs. Quantity.

(Florida Agriculturist:) Orange-growers have herefotore looked almost entirely to the quantity of fruit produced by their groves, and the matter of quality has been at most a secondary consideration. In estimating his crop the grower has looked to the number of boxes and cared very little for their quality—except perhaps as to color and desirable size. As an evidence of this fact we can cite the resolutions and pledges of orange-growers at various meetings and unions. They "resolve" that the minimum price for the fruit, for instance, shall be at per box and pledge themselves not to sell for less. It is very evident from this that the matter of quality is not considered.

This we think is wrong, and such action discriminates against the good fruit and causes the careful and scientific grower, who, in cultivating his trees, in competition with the man who cultivates with the single idea of getting as many boxes of oranges as possible.

The old cry that a "Florida orange is a Florida orange," and that one is as good to it.

as another, has long been proven fallacious, and it is now generally admitted that there is the same difference between Florida oranges as other fruits and products. It stands to reason that such should be the case. The matter of variety of cultivation and fertilization has as much to do with the production of a good orange as they have with a good potate or a good cabbage.

In the past when the supply of oranges was limited and the demand exceeded the supply to a greater extent than at present the quality of fruit placed on the market was not so closely considered; but now, when the yield has more than kept pace with the increasing demand, or at least with the facilities of marketing and handling, the purchaser is naturally more critical. Having a larger supply from which to select, he naturally takes the best, and is willing to pay more for it than for the inferior, in fact, as long as the good is offered him, he will reject the inferior at any price.

The moral of this is that it will pay to offered him, he will reject the inferior at any price.

The moral of this is that it will pay to grow good oranges, even if the cost of production over the inferior is very much greater, and the successful orange-grower of the future will be the man who sacrifices quantity to quality and devotes his attention not so much to the production of large crops as to the production of fine crops.

A BUNAWAY TRAIN.

Quickness of Wit and Bravery Prevents a Tragedy.

The Christmas St. Nicholas has a striking story by Fred P. Fox, entitled "President for One Hour." It tells of a quick-witted boy who prevented a railroad collision, by which many lives would inevitably have been lost. A heavy cattle train had broken into three sections on a street grade and the three sections on a steep grade, and the engine was running "wild" in advance of one of the sections. Tom Martin, the hero of the story, telegraphed to have the track cleared of all other trains, and then proceeded to catch the runaway. Here is the Story:

Then out of the gloom there came a steady voice: It seemed filled with an inceaced or all other trains, and then proceeded to catch the runaway. Here is the story:

Then out of the gloom there came a steady voice: It seemed filled with an inspiration. It was an opportunity for the genius of a true "railroad man," and the man, or, rather, boy, was there, ready to prove his capacity.

The boy Tom spoke up: All you men get out and oil the track—pour on oil, put on grease, smear it with tallow, or anything! That will keep back the engine a little—perhaps enough. After the engine has passed, keep on with the work. Remember we've got to save Flynn's life—yes, and save the cattle, too."

Just then the ticket agent, hearing the men hurrying about, had come downstairs and asked the trouble. As briefly as he could, Tom told him the situation, and then said: "Mr. Lenox, I'm going to climb into the runaway engine, if it's a possible thing, and check her up. I've $5 or so here. Take it, and, if I'm hurt, give it to my mother. Tell her I was going to get her a Christmas present, and tell her I know that she would tell me to do just what I'm going to do. God bless her! If I come dut all right—and there is a chance—don't ever let her know what I did. Promise, quick!"

Before going out, Tom took off his well-worn overcoat—and jacket, tightened up his belt, and prepared to run the race of his life. He then sent out to the platform and found that the men had olled the track thoroughly for several hundred yards. He did not dare tell them of his purpose, for fear that they would stop him; but he said to Bob: "After the engine passes get all the men you can at work—more are coming every minute—put onsell the oil you can, and tallow, but be careful to see that there is nothing to make the cars jump the track, for that will kill all the cattle and horses, and perhaps poor Jack Flynn! He was seen clinging to the last car at Rockville. But he dared not climb up or jump off, it seems, on account of the speed of the train. There she comes now—I can hear her! I'll run up to the other end of the platform to meet he

The engine was coming rapidly toward him. He turned and ran along the platform in the same direction as the engine, at a speed that would have carried him fifty yards in about six seconds. The engine gained on him, and, just as the step was passing, he reached up, grasped the handles, and swung himself up on the step. He rested there for a few seconds, and then climbed slowly up into the cab. His face was as white as the card on the steam-gauge, and, in spite of the cold steam-gauge, and, in spite of the cold wind that blew upon him, he was dripping with perspiration.

The author then describes Tom's effort to get up the steam, which was almost exhausted, and the final appearance, to get up the steam, which was almost exhausted, and the final appearance, through the fog, of the broken section coming after him like a whirlwind.

A tangent of twelve miles away straight before him, with a gentle descending grade, then a mile level, and then a four-mile up-grade into Mount Vernon. Once more he crept down into the tender, opened wide-the furnace doors, raked the fire, and threw in the coal evenly over every part of the great fire-box. He left the ash-pit door open for better draft, and then climbed upon the coal to see if he could distinguish his relenties pursuer. The light had begun to dispel the fog, and three hundred feet away he could see the on-coming train. "It will take all the speed she's got," he thought, and leaving the tender he crept back into the cab. He opened the throttle wide, pushing the lever over forward as far as it would go. The steam kept up, and the only thing to fear was that the axle-box would get heated on account of the frightful speed of the engine; but then he reflected that the pace would tell on the freight-axles even more, since they were not geared to so high a speed as were those of the locomotive.

The engine was now going at the rate even more, since they were not geared to so high a speed as were those of the locomotive.

The engine was now going at the rate of a mile a minute, or faster. More coal was necessary, and he resolved to leave the window and stand by the furnace. In ten minutes the level was struck, and the pursuer had gained two hundred feet, on account of its greater weight; a minute later the up-grade was reached. More coal was needed, and the shovel was kept busy feeding the flery mouth whose tongue of flame seemed never to be satisfied. As the engine began the ascent of the up-grade the freight section was only fifty feet away. After a mile on the grade, the locomotive pulled slowly away from the freight. Then Tom closed the ashpit door, went back to the window, closed the thortie a little, tried the airbrakes, and three minutes later pulled into the depot at Mount Vernon, and came to a stop. He looked out of the window, perched high in air, and said to the operator: "Just wire Wayville that engine No. 303 has arrived here safely, and that Tom's all right."

"You always have," said his friend.

The other hesitatingly handed over the half-dollar.

He Was Rather Uncertain About Re-

"This politics." 'fWhat politics?'

"That at Washington."
"I don't quite catch on."
"Why, don't you know about the legislation that's going on there?"
"Yes."
"Well, that's what I mean."
"What about it?"
The passenger took the officer by the arm.
"I mean thish," he said, "was it the Senate that gassed the Sugar Bill, or was it the sugar that passed the Senate bill? I'm kind of mixed this evening." But the officer declined to interfere.

The boy's curiosity overcame him at last, and he selfled along up to the officer. "I say, Mr. Copper," he said, at a safe distance, "what are you standing on this corner for?"

"I say, Mr. Copper," he said, at a safe distance, "what are you standing on this corner for?"
"That's my business," he replied, ourtly,
"Well, you seem to be 'tendin' to it," ventured the boy,
"That's what i'm paid for,"
"Alle samee," chirruped the lad, "I know what you're standing there for."
"I'll give you a noiskel if you'll tell me," bantered the officer as he held a com out to the kid.
"Throw it to me," said the boy, keepina his distance warlly, "Not much. You tell me what I'm standing her for and I'll give it to you."
The boy came up close enough to reach the coin, "You're standin' here for ten minutes," he said, with a grab as the money, and the officer chased him in wain.

(Savannah News, Dem.:) Local authorities in all parts of the country might as well understand, and act in accordance with that understanding, that if they do not give protection to life and property the people will at once appeal to Federal authority. No past teachings in respect to State rights such as those upon which Gov. Alfgeld of Illinois based his protest against the invasion of that State by Federal troops, at the time of the great railroad strike in Chicago last summer, will restrain them. What they want and what they will have is protection against lawlessness in whatever form it may present itself.

An interesting testimony to the value of irrigation in the northern part of the State was furnished by Delegate Knox of Amador, who said that his prize peaches were irrigated every few days, and, in-stead of raising a couple of hundred small peaches, he raised 100 large peaches that always sold for the highest price that always sold for the highest price. He irrigated whenever he saw the ground getting dry. Out of a box picked from one tree there was not one that weighed less than a pound and a quarter. Plant Apple Trees.

It is quite a general belief, not confine entirely to other sections than this State, that apples cannot be successfully grown in California, or, at all events, that the apples that are produced here are far inrier in quality to those of the Eastern tates. The fact that California apples were awarded high premiums at the New Orleans fair in competition with those from other parts of the country seems to have been entirely lost sight of, if, indeed, it was ever generally known. It is nevertheless a fact.

evidence that if there had been any apples cultivated at the missions there would still be some traces of them.

both Oregon and California came from sec tions where the apple was at its best, and quite naturally they brought the fruit with them and planted it wherever they made their homes. The settlers in Cali-fornia, unfortunately for the reputation of the fruit that was to come, largel made their experiments in the The trees throve, and attaining early ma turity produced large crops of fine looking fruit. But the quality of their valley apples was unluckily inferior to that to which the settlers had been accustomed in their former homes, and hastily the fruit was condemned, and this condemnation has remained ever since.

Those pioneers who established the selves at the mining camps in the foot-hills and mountains, however, and there planted the apple, had an exactly opportunity site experience. Their trees bore yearly, and the fruit lacked nothing in comparison with the choicest products of the Eastthose products in every respect, and was largely bought at good prices. Unfortu-nately even the superior excellence of the foothill and mountain fruit was insuffition passed upon all the California apples, and hence these seldom had more than local representation and sale, and no encouragement was held out for culti-vating them upon an extended scale. So it gradually came about that whenever good apples were wanted Oregon was called upon to supply them. That State was abundantly able to meet the demand, rticularly as the prices cheerfully paid cessive, and made the ownership of an wealth as the proprietorship of an orange the elevated mountain valleys of the Sierra and Coast ranges where the choicest apple can be produced in the greatest abund ance. There is no exaggeration in assert ing that this mountain fruit is simply un-surpassable in either size, appearance, quality or abundance of production. The codling moth and other insects which have worked havoc in the valley orchards have and they may be readily prevented from doing so by united action on the part of the growers. These apples bring the highest prices and return large profits, and their superior keeping qualities ren-der it possible to ship them to all parts of the world without loss. Everyone who has examined into the matter is satis-fied that this industry is capable of almost indefinite extension, and that instead of the popular idea in regard to California apples referred to at the outset, the entire country will in time come to look to California for its choicest apples, just as it now does for the best oranges, peaches, prunes and other fruit.

Ornamental Plants to be Grown for (An essay by Dr. F. Franceschi, read a industry with us, and ornamental plants made to serve an economic purpose. You are well aware how rich our garden flora is already, and that it is destined to become more so, as we possess conditions of soil and climate calculated to grow plants from nearly every part of the world. To exploit for new introductions, to experiexploit for new introductions, to experi-ment and to propagate such new plants as may prove desirable, not only requires some knowledge of botany, but an expen-diture of time and money and of labor. Such work can only be carried on profita-bly on a large scale, like the enterprise we

Such work can only be carried on profitably on a large scale, like the enterprise we are now trying to establish at Montecito. Raising improved strains of garden flowers and plants, either by careful selection or by judicious crossing, is a kind of work made easy in this climate, where fruits set and seeds generally ripen to perfection. This branch of horticulture is eminently adapted to small farming, and even to persons in position to afford a large expenditure of intelligent application rather than of money or of labor.

I have been investigating the conditions of climate and soll in Southern California for the past two years, and I am firmly of the belief that flower-farming holds out a future full of promise, its market being unlimited, while the transportation problem is largely solved by utilizing the mails. If we survey the present conditions of our gardens and compare them with those of earlier times, the improvements noticed in all kinds of plants is indeed a matter of wonder. Where are now the dahlias, the chrysanthemums, the carnations, the begonias, the pansies, etc., of fifty years ago? A first improvement leads to a second, and so on, no limit being possible.

To be successful in this field one must be a specialist, and work only in certain lines with a singleness of purpose and care. Of course one can hardly expect that the specialty he has chosen will not be worked by others, but, in the production of new and improved varieties of flowers there is a virgin field not liable to be overdone.

stion of new and improved varieties of flowers ers there is a virgin field not liable to be overdone.

I will not attempt to enumerate the different plants to which attention may be called in this connection. Of such as are generally called garden flowers—that is, plants raised generally from seed which will bloom the first season, between those seen in every garden, those that have been introduced and undeservedly forgotten, and those that have not yet been submitted to culture—the number is, indeed too large to be even partially enumerated. Selection from among this vast number must be made with judgment, based upon what offers probable success. Impossibilities there are many, and it is not advisable for the flower expert to try and produce the sky-blue rose, the golden-yellow camellia, or the scarlet petunia. But against these impossibilities the number of improvements and combinations to which nature is liberally open is indeed wide. The day is not far distant, in my opinion, when we will be able to admire a whole series of white-flowered cannas, striped, blotched or edged with every shade of crimson, scarlet and yellow; morning glories (Ipomaeas) of any size, ranging in color from sky blue to bright scarlet, and from lemon yellow to flery orange.

been entirely lost sight of, if, indeed, it was ever generally known: It is nevertheless a fact.

The history of the apples on this Coast goes no farther back than the coming of the first pioneers across the plains. The mission-builders, among the variety of fruits introduced by them, appear to have passed the apple by with utter radifference. At all events, no traces are now to be seen that the padres ever experimented with pie outture, and the present existence of the present existence of for an intelligent mind to take in hand any sorts of plants be raises admirable forms often surpassing nature itself. In this country, too, a start has been given, and without mentioning social cultures at Redondo, Pasadena and other places in Los Angeles County, the best exemplification is to be seen at our very doors in Ventura County, where the most remarkable work in this line has been carried on by Mrs. Theodosia B. Shepherd. At her place one can see many prombing hybrids of begonias, cannas, amaryllis, cacti and other plants. Following in the footsteps of that enterprising lady, others have pushed forward with equal success. One has taken petunias and verbenas; another gladiolus, and soon. This leads me to suggest the growing of bulbs for commercial purposes. Calla llly and freesia bulbs are already largely exported, and no doubt other kinds can be grown equally well.

The production of cut blooms for market is a matter worthy of attention. For cut flowers we have a demand at our doors, which, for about eight months of the year, will take a large amount of cut roses, carnations and others flowers. Besides the most important centers, such as Salt Lake City, Denver, Omaha, Chicago, all distant about three days' travel by rail, over this territory there are many smaller towns to be supplied by our growers, because there is no local supply. On the Riviera the growing of cut flowers is practiced on a large scale on the flower farms and by small growers, who, of course, do not have the same facilities for disposing of their daily crop. I do not see why a flower grower's union could anot be started and be of as much servicate the growers of trust. Under proper control and regulation it is not impossible to establish a lucrative trade in the more costly flowers that would bear transportation with St. Louis, Cincinnati and even New York. I am of the opinion that the day will come when we will be able to ship orchid flowers to the extreme East, considering the ease with which many of them can be grofitably grown fo

They get in the habit of eating so rapidly that half the grain enters their stomachs whole, and the outer touch covering of oats, bar-ley, corn and other grains cannot be deanimals receiving any direct benefit from it, but the ctomach is frequently injured by the whole grains passing through. In-digestion and flatulency very often owe their cause entirely to this.

Feeding Grain to Hogs.

Feeding Grain to Hogs.

(American Cultivator:) A correspondent of the Rural Northwest makes a box for feeding grain to his manil pigs in this way. The box is about twelve inches square by eighteen inches deep, with a hinged ild, and a bottom two feet square, around which is a narrow cleat, making a trough entirely around the box. On each side of the box at the bottom is a hole six or eight inches long and three-fourths of an inch deep. When the box is filled, grain will run out into the trough until it is a little above the hole, and as the pigs sat this sway more runs out. This being filled and placed beyond the reach of the saw, the pigs go to it as they please, and yet cannot get out much to waste it. He prefers outs to other grain for pigs that are about the weaning age, as keeping the pigs growing well and supplying bone and musche-forming food, while the mother's milk fattens them. We have, however, seen the time when there was a large litter of pigs upon a sow rather thin in fiesh that we should advise adding a little cracked corn to the oats, as we like to see sucking pigs in pretty good flesh or fat, rather than lean. cracked corn to the oats, as we like to see sucking pigs in pretty good flesh or fat, rather than lean.

Cows in milk will consume nearly 50 per cent. more water than the same cows when not giving milk. The New York experiment station at Geneva found as an average of several breeds that each cow drank 1039 pounds of water and consumed 547 pounds more in food per month. During lactation the average per month was ing actation the average per month was 1660 pounds drank and 774.5 pounds con-sumed in food. The pounds of water con-sumed for each pound of milk produced were as follows: Ayrshires, 4.26; Guern-seys, 5.07; Holsteins, 4.43; Jerseys, 5.24; Shorthorns, 5; Holderness, 3.95; Devons, 4.82, making an average of 4.68 pounds. The need of an abundance of water is factured by a machine which is the invention of O. N. Steel, and is run by a belt attached to the dairy engine.

Four tons of beets are fed daily. The horse beam are grown on the farm. They are sown early, and harvested early. The yield is four tons of beams per acre. It is strong feed, and is used mixed with other grain.

In manufacturing butter, Curtis's trunk top churn is used. It it a square box and a easily kept clean. Mr. Steele uses butter paper instead of cloth. He is of the opinson that it is the best; it is a half cheaper and is dust proof. He obtains his from the Vermont Farm Machine Company, Bellows Falle, Vt.

There are two large siles in use on the ranch. Each is 20x40 feet and 20 feet high, divided into two apartments. The sales with matched redwood, and have asphalt floors. They are filled twice during the year. The first crop of alfalfa is cut in the spring and sileed. It is put in green and uncut, covered with about a foot of straw and then with plank. It is fed out when the grass becomes scarce in the summer. The second time they are filled with out corn fodder, including the ears. In this way there is kept always on hand an abundant supply of feed, and consequently when butter is high there is a full flow of milk. Mr. Steele thinks that siles are indeed proflable. He intends building another one soon and in circular form, as it will withstand the pressure of the ensilese better.

(Florids Agriculturist:) Pine needles, such as can be gathered under any pine tree, or the needles of spruce, fir and hemicok, make good material for hens' needs. Clean, dry, and with a little of the resinous odor, they pack well, are not as apt to be scratched out of the nests by the bens as are hay or straw, nor are they as good harbors for vermin.

Sometimes people laugh about having "got in the habit of eating," but is it not possible that habit has something to do with it; or at least with excessive eating? We are reminded of this by seeing a flock, of chickens which had been fed until it seemed that they could eat no more, run "peoping" after the mistress of the poultry yard as if half starved, nor would they stop until she had fed them again, when they picked up a few grains and went away, only to do the same thing half an hour later, although wheat was then on the ground. They seemed to associate the idea of food with her coming, as the laborer does with the sound of the noonday whistle. If they had been trained to the idea of food at the sound of the factory whistle they would manage to be, or appear to be hungry at that time. We have no doubt that poultry or faimals can be made to eat more than they need, more than they can digest, and, therefore, more than is good for them, by irregular feeding, just as surely as mankind can.

Have regular hours for giving food, or keep it constantly by them and allow them to eat when they desire. We have found the latter plan to work very well with Leghorns, Black Spanish and other active foraging fowls when allowed to run at large. If insects and weed seeds were abundant they required but little at the feeding-trough, and ate no more than they mode of the feeding-trough, and ate no more than they would get too fat if any food were kept constantly by them; but we think not as fat as if they were fed every few hours, when one went into the yard. For pure "hoggishness" in eat and yet we think the hen will exceed them both.

Wheat is a very good poultry food, as marry every poultry-raiser knows, but nearly every poultry-raiser knows, but wheat screenings, as sold in this section, is usually a more expensive food than is usually a more expensive food than sound wheat. It is light grain, chaff and foul seed, which will be eaten by the fowl, and upon a farm may introduce undesirable weeds. Good, sound wheat is none too good for good fowls, particularly when it is as cheap as it is now; but one can sometimes find a physical wheat where times find a shrunken wheat, or a score wheat, that is yet all solid grain, at m lower price than good flouring wheat, may be profitable to buy for feeding.

Almost every farmer who feeds corn stalks to cows has them cut. It is not always safe to feed horses the cut stalks, as their digestive apparatus is different The hard, woody stalks, cut in small piece may injure a horse's intestines before the gastric juices have time to soften them. The feed when eaten by the cow goes more in a mass and is brought up and rechewed in her cud. For this reason cut corn stalks ought not to be fed to horses unless first wet with warm water to soften them then the hard portion of them will be left (California Cultivator:) One of the largest, best equipped and best-paying dairies on the Pacific Coast is that owned by E. W. Steele, located a few miles south of San Louis Obispo. The farm is managed by O. N. Steele, and was visited by a Cultivator representative recently.

The dairy consists of about 500 cows, of which about 275 are kept constantly milking. At present Mr. Steele has about 100 thoroughbred Holstein cattle and a smal herd of Jerseys. He has some milech cows which are a cross between these two, and which have proven valuele dairy cows.

Every cow in the large dairy has a number and is known by it. The number is on a strap around her neck and also on the stall in the stable. Every month a sample is taken of each cow's milk from four consecutive milkings, tested with the Babcock milk test, and the results recorded. Also the quantity of milk is set down by the book-keeper. The value of a cow is known by her record, and the purchaser of a cow examines the books as an evidence of her value.

During the summer, chopped feed (horse beens and wheat) is used, mixed with beet pulp and cut straw. The following rations for each cow are given twice daily, when they are put into the stable at milking time: Two pounds chopped horse beens, 2 pounds wheat, 25 pounds beet pulp mixed with sufficient straw to make a moist mixture. The best pulb is manufactured with sufficient straw to make a moist mixture. The best pulb is manufactured for oil and food has the sunflower industry of Russia become, that in flower industry of Russia become, that in the stable at milking the content of the sunflower industry and the cake to the stock.

1881-2 there were 367,889 acres in cultivation; in 1886-7, 704,496 acres. Seed is of the large and small varieties, the latter used for oil, the former eaten the same as peanuts. A Russian farther gives the yield of seeds at 1450 to 1600 pounds per acre and nets the grower $38 to $31 per acre.

An American chemist, living in St. Petersburg, in 1888 mae a compound lard, taking sunflower oil as the base, which was pronounced superior to hog's lard in every respect for domestic purposes. Some of this compound was sent to a food exposition in Holland, and took the first prize as pure refined hogs lard. He then produced, from the same oil, oleomargarine, which also took a premium as creamery butter. From the residuum of the oil he manufactured fine washing and tiolet soaps, which are standard brands in Europe and South America. Value as Stock Feed.—The annual out-the oil of the sunflower oil mills is estimated at $1,700,000 for the oil only. Oil put of all the sunflower oil mills is estimated at $1,700,000 for the oil only. Oil cake is put at $500,000. The oil cake is largely consumed in Russia, Germany, England, Sweden, Denmark and Holland, as feed for cattle. The stock-raisers and farmers of these countries regard the oil cake as the best food to be obtained for cattle. They claim for it superiority over hemp or rape seed for producing flesh on beef cattle, and equally as good for increasing the supply of milk in milch cows. A German farmer reports that he increased the flesh of an ox three pounds per day by feeding on sunflower oil cake. These people also hold it in high esteem as a horse feed. They say it produces flesh and gives the hair a lively, silck appearance. The dried cups are fed to sheep, and the faulty seeds are used as feed for barnyard fowls. In many sections where wood is scarce the stalks and shells are used as fuel, which answers as a good substitute. The ash from the sunflower contains a large per cent. of potassium. Experiments have proven that 1000 pounds of dried stalks yield 57 pounds of sah and from 1000 pounds of ash 350 pounds of the best potassium is obtained. According to the analysis of chemists, the ash of the sunflower contains about 30 per cent. of potassium, and it is also claimed by these scientists that if the soil is very rich, the plant will take, up 50 per cent. of potassium, and it is also claimed by these scientists that if the soil is very rich, the plant will take, up 50 per cent. of potassium, and it is also claimed by these scientists that if the soil is very rich, the plant will take, up 50 per cent. of potassium is obtained. THE GOOD WORK DONE BY THE SAMARITANS.

How the Sick and Poor are Looked After—For the Bensfit of the Children's Home—Per-sonal Items.

PASADENA, Nov. 30.—The Thanksgiving benevolence of the United Samaritan Society has brought that worthy association again into notice. The object of the society is to care for the sick and poor in the city, and to relieve their needs; whether of the spirit, soul or of the body. The society meets at 3 p.m. on the last Tuesday in every month in the Methodist Church, though it is a union work, assisted by members of all churches. According to the annual report, just compiled, about 115 visits were made during the past year, and many families were helped and kept from actual suffering for want. A number of children have been cared for at the homes of members. The ministrations of the benevolent order is extended also to jails and prisons, and with the articles intended for physical comfort there is generally distributed tracts and religious reading intended to better the spiritual welfare of the recipients. The report referred to shows that the society has received about 900 articles of clothing from which the best were selected and given to the poor in this city, and the remainder were sent to the Indian mission school. As was stated, in the report of the Thanksgiving services the yearly cash receipts of the society amounted to $165.05, and the disbursements $165.03, leaving 2 cents in the treasury. The society thanks those who so generously contributed to the Thanksgiving fund. The individual offerings in cash were $48.56; value of food contributed, $100; cash collection at the Thanksgiving service, $59.32. In addition there were received Wednesday 300 articles of clothing. Of these supplies forty-eight families were made the recipients and given reasons for thankfulness on the day devoted to the general Thanksgiving.

The Effect of the Jetty—An Object
Lesson on the Tariff.

SAN DIEGO, Nov. 23—(Special Correspondence.) Observation of the effect of the newly-built jetty, at the mouth of this parbor shows that very material changes have occurred in widening and deepening the channel. Owing to this jetty it is estimated that hundreds of thousands of tons of sand have been carried by the tide from the ship channel and deposited out in the ocean, where it is no hindrance to navigation. On January 1, 1895, an additional appropriation of $40, e905 will be available from the national treasury for an extension of this jetty. When the addition is completed, increased favorable results in the betterment of the ship channel are looked for. This piece-meal policy of the government, in this jetty construction, is made expensive and less effectious than it would be to make one job of the matter. The Minneapolis Beach Colony, near Carlabad, is composed of energetic Minneapolis people, who are about building a number of substantial homes, a reservoir to supply the entire colony, besides clearing a large acreage for fruit. SOME DEPREDATIONS AT TUSTIN.

There were some depredations committed in the usually quiet little town of Tustin Thursday evaning which should be traced to the perpetrators with the purpose of having them brought within the strong arm of the law.

Several ladies and gentlemen from this city drove down to Tustin in the evening, and, while at an entertainment, some miscreant cut the harness on several of the horses so that when the young people started home they came near being seriously injured by the horses becoming frightened and unmanageable. The harness on one of the horses that was driven by a lady was cut so badly that she could not venture home until they were mended.

The officers think they know who the young rascals are, and they propose to make them pay the penalty for such actions if convicting evidence can be procured against them.

young rascals are, and they propose to make them pay the penalty for such actions if convicting evidence can be procured against them.

THANKSGIVING IN SANTA ANA.

Thursday was indeed a day of thanksgiving in Santa Ana. There was something going on for almost everyone. There was a big rabbit chase out on the Alamitos, ranch, a free excursion to Newport Beach over the Santa Ana and Newport Railroad and a right royal clam bake, free for everyone, after the visitors were landed at the edge of the "troubled waters," afternoon bicycle parties, union religious services, missionary entertainments, pleasure parties, social dances, and many other things too numerous to mention. Nearly all those who were left at home had turkey and cranberry sauce or chicken with the usual style of dressing, and in many instances this in itself was an entertainment well worthy the attention of the average bona fide representation of human kind.

It was a day long to be remembered by residents in almost every vocation in life. The free excursion to Newport Beach seemed to fill the day's programme. For those who had made no definite arrangements for the day were in just the humor to pile on an excursion train and roll away to the beach to while away a few hours in delictous idleness, while the little troubled wavelets lapped up on the shore in restless succession. Over a thousand men, women and children availed themselves of this opportunity to visit the beach, and they all enjoyed themselves as only good-natured excursionists know how. F. W. Stein and wife of Los Angeles came down to Santa Ana Thursday to attend the big rabbit drive out on the Alamitos ranch. Mr. and Mrs. Stein were passengers with Mrs. Frank Ey of this city on the ill-fated steamer Los Angeles, that went down off Point Monterey about six months ago.

It is reported that Mrs. S. J. Edwards, who for some time has been residing on the land of. Gov. Markham at Orange, which her son is farming, has recently come into a nice little fortune of $25,000, which she inherits from a rich uncle who died not long ago in Tennessee.

If a stranger were to drop off at Santa Ann now and did not know of the Christian Endeavor Convention being in session, he would more than likely think there was a Silkwood race on the tapis, judging from the great number of yellow-silk badges that are seen on the streets.

The Superior Court of this county has ordered the testimony transcribed in the case of Jacob Yaeger vs. the Southern California Rallway Company, an action for damages for personal injuries received in a collision at Orange about a year and a half ago.

An Election Surprise—A Tie on Con-

SANTA MONICA, Nov. 30.—(Special Correspondence.) The slow progress of the official count, by the Board of Supervisors, of the vote cast at the election of November 6 has left it until this late date to be discovered that the vote for Constable of Santa Monica township is a tie between Robert C. Hunter and A. L. Forsyth. The best obtainable unofficial figures showed Hunter's election by 20 to 30 plurality; but the canvass by the Supervisors shows each man to have re-

THE EAST SIDE.

A "Field Day" of the Boys' Brigade-At the Park,

About seventy-five members of the Boys' Brigade came over from town yesterday morning and took possession of East Los Angeles Park, which they held against all Angeles Park, which they held against all comers until late in the day. The Fifth company, from the First M. E. Church came thirty-five strong, under command of Capt. Fisher, while Capt. Johnson of the Ninth company had nearly as many of his command, which is made up of boys from the Central M. E. Church. There were also a number of stragglers from other companies. The whole party was out for fun and they got it. The affair was termed a "field day." but there was little time spent in military drill. The forenoon was taken up with baseball and other games and a good deal of time was taken up in eating, the mothers of the young up in eating, the mothers of the young soldiers having provided them with plenty of rations of the kind acceptable to boys.

In the afternoon there were company drills, witnessed by a number of spectators, and then the boys were turned loose again.

Mr. Mohan did a rushing business with his boats and the park rang with the sound of merry laughter. The park people had lots to say in praise of the boys, who were orderly and well behaved, a striking were orderly and well behaved, a striking contrast to the gangs of young hoodlums who sometimes infest the place.

The hop given by the Bachelors at Banquet Hall Thursday evening was a very pleasant affair, and a perfect success. The committee was somewhat disappointed with their music, not being able to secure the desired orchestra, but a substitute was provided and everything went off smoothly. About forty couples were in attendance and dancing was kept up till midnight.

The Congregational, Baptist, Preabyterien and Methodist churches of this side have decided to enter into union services, to begin next Monday evening. The first week they will be held at the Congregational Church, and afterward, if necessary, a move will be made to the Presbyterian Church, which is much larger, Evangelist S. A DIAMOND MYSTERY PUZZLING THE POLICE.

Valuable Gems Found in Possessio of a Man Taken in on Suspicion-Fires at Redlands, Brevities.

SAN BERNARDINO, Nov. 30.—(Special Correspondence.) "Whose diamonds are they?" is the question puszling the police officers of this city. They were found upon the person of J. W. Coleman, who, with A. H. Reed, was atrested last night upon susption. The man Reed, who is thought to be simply a tool of Coleman's, appeared at Moore's jew-edity store yesterday morning and sold for old gold two ear-rings and a brooch, from which five diamonds had evidently been taken. At the same time he intimated that he might be able to get him a diamond. Laster in the day Reed appeared at the store with Coleman, and the latter asked Moore to change a dollar for him. As the safe was looked he said he could not do so. Then Reed left the store and Coleman lingered and produced a fine three and a half-carset diamond and offered to sell it. Moore told him he would give him $200 for it. Coleman and that he had paid $480 for a short time ago. Moore asked him to come again today and said they would strike a bargain. He tilen notified the police, and the men were captured a short distance up the street. Both denied having diamonds about them, but when searched three stones, wrapped in brown "paper, were found upon the person of Coleman and none upon Reed. What became of the other two taken from the settings is not known. Two of the stones weigh three artists each and the other three and a half, and jewelers place the value of the three at $1000. Reed is believed to be a railroad mag from Minneapolis, as he has letters from prominent attorneys of that city, and is thought to be simply a tool of Coleman's whe exonerates him from all complicity, to be used in helping to dispose of the interest. REDLANDS.

REDLANDS.

REDLANDS, Nov. 20.—(Special Correspondencs.) About every able-bodied person in Rediands turned out yesterday to see the football game between the Rediands Y.M.C.A. team and the Occidental team of Los Angeles. There was some excellent blying, especially by the home team. Van Leuven won the admiration of the crowd by his sprinting, and Secretary Black did magnificent work all through the game. Some good team work was done by the home boys, showing what a little practice will do. The Occidentals, in spite of their hard work, were not equal to the occasion. The score was 16 to 6; time an hour and a half. To those who had never seen a modern footfall game, it appeared little better than an all-around fight, and was thought too brutal to have any element of sport in it.

About 2 o'clock this morning Mr. Whiting of the Workingmen's Store heard a disturbanch, and arising he found a fire started in one corner of the front of the room, and a hole through the window, which appeared to have been broken in order to start the fire. He had no other theory of the origin of the fire, as he has no fire in that part to the joulding, and not even a lamp had been lighted there wince Thursday. The fire was put out with a nominal loss.

On Wednesday night the large bearn of M. D. Esston of the Barton, tract was destroyed by fire, together with a lot of implements. There were several head of horses in the barn, but they were gotten out. The origin of the fire was a spark from a Mexican's cigarette. The loss was about $1300, and insurance but $600.

Koch's Persistent, but Unsuccessful,

Attempts at Self-destruction. There are some very peculiar features about the attempts at suicide made by about the attempts at suicide made by John H. Koch, and now that the man is reported doing well and has been sent out to the County Hospital, they will do to tell. The lady of the house where he stopped explained why it was that the clotted and dried blood around each of his wounds showed a different degree of freshness. The house is built on a hillside, and Koch coopied the room downstairs in what would be the basement. Wednesday night sehe heard a sound from his room that sounded to her like the bursting of a paper bag. Thursday morning she heard another, and Friday afternoon another. After the last one she heard dismal groans and proceeded to investigate. She got through the window and found Koch "awful sick" as he expressed it,) so sent for the patrol wagon.

It seems that the simple young Hollander did not know enough to secure a respectable weapon with which to finish off his existence, but got out a little pop-gun that is about four inches long and carries a builet about the size of a pea. Wednesday night he fired one of the little pellets into his forehead just over his nose; then he waited for death. Death not putting in his appearance by Thursday night, he drove another builet into his left temple and waited many hours for that to finish the work. He didn't die. Surprised that he could not get the desired relief, Friday afternoon he worked in a grand wind-up in two acts that had no

Surprised that he could not get the desired relief. Friday afternoon he worked in a grand wind-up in two acts that had no other effect than to hurt him so that his groans attracted the attention of the landlady. He raised up his shirt and aimed another bullet at his heart, then drew his rasor and dug it into his wright wrist for an artery. But still he couldn't die; so he submitted to removal to the station, and finally to the hospital, and now if he wants to finish it up when he gets well, no doubt he will purchase a good American six-shooter and make g sure thing of the job.

Chattanooga Salt Lake

THE FIRST THING IN THE morning take a little Carlsbad Sprudel Salt in a glass full of water. That will set you right and keep you right, if you're inclined to be bilious or dyspeptic or constipated.

People wonder, sometimes, why it is that the Carlsbad treatment, the world's remedy for habitual constipation, should be recommended for diarrhoea and such disorders, too. Simply, because it leads the stomach and bowels naturally into a healthy condition, whatever their derange ments-it doesu't accomplish its results by harmful irritation, as most pills and purgatives do.

Beware of imitations sold as "imwed" or "artificial" Carlsbad Salt. The only genuine Carlsbad Salt, with all the properties of the Sprudel Spring solidified, has the seal of the city of Carlshad and the signature of "EISNER & MENDELSON COM-PANY, Agents. New York," on every bottle. All others are worthless im itations.

Telegram from Santa Claus. North Pole, December 1, 1894.—Golden Rule Bazaar, No. 247 South Spring street: Hurrah for Christmas. Get ready; make room. I start in advance of one hundred carloads of toys and Christmas presents. No one so old, no one so young but what a fitting and appropriate gift will be found in my splendid display. I can tell better when I get to Los Angeles how soon I can shake hands with all good, little boys and girls, and take their orders for Christmas. Yours in confusion, Santa Claus.

Bride of Two Weeks Minus Hus-

Mrs. George Walker, a bride of two weeks, who married a man named George Walker, a barber by trade, in Ottumwa, lowa, is in the city alone, and it is the opinion in police circles that the heart-less husband is on his way to Chicago, with several hundred dollars of his wife's money that she was so careless as to le money that she was so careless as to let the fellow have. Her name was Florence Forbes and she says she has known Walker for more than a year. She had saved up about $1600, and Walker had good looks and a desire for that cash, so he paid ardent attentions to the lady with looks and a desire for that cash, so in paid ardent attentions to the lady with the result that they were married and she agreed to go to Los Angeles and set the barber up in business. She turned over about $1000 in cash and a $400 draft to him for safe-keeping, and they started arriving here five days ago. They secured rooms at the Russ House, and the vacant store at No. 707 East First street, was secured in which to store the trunks and larber's supplies. Walker yesterday awked his wife to walt for him a few minutes, then he took his baggage and left. She waited and waited and her husband not returning, she started an investigation that developed the foregoing disclosures. She had her draft left her, because her husband had been unable to realize on tit, and it is probable she will soon return East.
